They'll Never Get It Off the Ground

The XP-21 is one machine that won't break the sound barrier—in fact it won't even get off the ground. It's General Motors' experimental gas-turbine car, here being put through its paces by test driver Mauri Rose. The 370-horsepower turbine, which is not a jet engine, is the first used in a car in the United States. Called the Firebird, the car has a fibreglass body that is definitely not intended for driving in traffic.

Canadian Swim Star Challenges Florence Chadwick To Race

Both Have Conquered Channel, Making Almost Identical Times

BY LAWRIE JOSLIN

Canada's darling of the swimming world, Mrs. Winnie Roach Leuszler, wants to race United States swimming ace, Florence Chadwick, across the Strait of Juan de Fuca next summer.

Mrs. Leuszler, who became the first Canadian woman to swim the English Channel in 1951, said she believes a race with Miss Chadwick across the strait would take on the aspects of an international competition and be beneficial both to Canada and the U.S.

The 28-year-old mother of three children told The Colonist last night from St. Thomas, Ont., that she has never been in Victoria, but her mother, the former Marguerite Abbott, was brought up on Vancouver Island.

If her planned strait swim becomes a reality, Mrs. Leuszler would come to Victoria about three weeks in advance of the date scheduled for the marathon classic.

MIGHT MAKE CHECK

It is possible, she said, that she might make an earlier trip to Victoria to make a detailed check of tide and temperature conditions in the strait.

This might not be necessary, however, since Miss Chadwick is coming here next week to look over the course and decide whether a swim is possible.

Miss Chadwick's views of conditions likely to be met in a strait crossing will probably be good enough for Mrs. Leuszler.

"If Florence Chadwick can do it, I can do it," Mrs. Leuszler declared stoutly.

The Canadian star, noted for her courage and endurance in marathon swim events, wants to take to the chilly waters of the strait at exactly the same moment as Miss Chadwick and make the contest a full-fledged race.

"FEEL I CAN BEAT HER"

"I would like the chance to race her," she stated. "I rather feel I could beat her."

Mrs. Leuszler (who usually races under her maiden name, Winnie Roach) is already getting herself into fighting trim.

She started training last week for the famed course between Catalina Island and San Pedro, Cal., and plans to make this swim in September.

Mrs. Leuszler is rarely out of the water for very long. She teaches swimming at the YWCA in St. Thomas.

The plucky Canadian girl is not afraid of chilly water or strong tidal currents. She met both in the English Channel and conquered them with what was described at the time as "a beautiful orthodox style."

Prior to her Channel venture she had trained in Lake Ontario where the waters for a period at least were a frigid 33 degrees.

"I'm not afraid of the cold," said Mrs. Leuszler.

When informed that the average temperature of the strait is 51 or 52 degrees in July, she replied gamely:

"That doesn't sound too bad."

Mrs. Leuszler said she met strong tides in the Channel. She was leading the field of Channel contenders in 1951 and was only a few miles out from her destination on the English coast when a strong tide forced her back. She said she understood the tidal current that she eventually overcame was running somewhere in the neighborhood of 20 miles an hour.

FOUGHT CRAMPS

She was seized by cramps only five miles out from the French coast and had to swim against this handicap the rest of the distance. Experts held that her cramps were caused by changing water temperatures which varied up and down under 63 degrees.

Though the Channel course was some 19 miles as the crow flies, Mrs. Leuszler said tidal currents lengthened her course to 38 miles, a distance she said she covered in 13 hours and 20 minutes.

When she completed the swim she had enough strength to walk in to shore to attendants on her escort boat.

FELT PRETTY GOOD

"I thought I felt pretty good when it was all over," she recalled.

Canada's leading swimming star is a trim five feet three inches in height and weighs 135 pounds.

She and her husband, a member of the Royal Canadian Air Force, are keenly interested in sports. In his younger days, Mr. Leuszler was a runner.

The young couple have three daughters, aged 6, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Leuszler (pronounced Lize-ler) is coached in all her swimming endeavors by her father, Edward Roach.

Mr. Roach would accompany his daughter to Victoria in all likelihood if the proposed race between Victoria and Port Angeles becomes a reality.

The swimming duel is bound to be a tightly-fought classic if it comes off. Both Mrs. Leuszler and Miss Chadwick have crossed the Channel in almost identical times.

Both started swimming at early ages. Miss Chadwick swam her first competition at the age of six. Mrs. Leuszler began swimming when she was only four years old.

Both have smashed the Channel crossing record of Gertrude Ederle which stood for 24 years at 14 hours and 31 minutes.

Mrs. Leuszler challenged Miss Chadwick at one time to a race between Catalina Island and the California mainland, but her letter of challenge apparently went astray because she never received any reply.

In her 1951 Channel race, Mrs. Leuszler led a field of six woman contenders most of the way across the gruelling 21-mile course between Cap Gris Nez, France, and the Dover beaches, and held the lead until she was caught in a strong tidal current. She was nosed out by Brenda Fisher, a 23-year-old English girl, who set the current women's world record for the Channel.

Miss Chadwick is understood to be 34 years old, which would make her six years older than Mrs. Leuszler.

Ever since Miss Chadwick announced last week that she is considering an attempt to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca between Victoria and Port Angeles, local marine and sports enthusiasts have been debating her chances of success.

Opinion appears to be divided as to whether even a strong swimmer like Miss Chadwick could successfully conquer the intense cold of the water and the treacherous tide currents for the length of time it would take to negotiate the 18.5-mile stretch of water.

A swimmer, because of the tides would have to swim farther than 18.5 miles to make the opposite shore.

U.S. Swimmer Thinks It Over

Florence Chadwick was uncertain last night whether she would be able to accept the challenge of Canada's Winnie Roach Leuszler to a swimming duel across the Strait of Juan de Fuca between Victoria and Port Angeles.

The United States swimming queen, reached early this morning in New York City, said she would have to talk to her agent before making a decision.

Mayor Favors Fireboat At Cost of Two Halls

BY RAY BAINES

Mayor Claude Harrison suggested yesterday that the city might do well to close two more fire halls and use the saving for a fireboat. He made the suggestion while commenting on both the Tuesday VMD fire and the city firemen's recent request for a 10-per-cent wage boost.

The Burnside hall, he said, was more use to Saanich than to Victoria and the James Bay fire hall served mainly the legislative buildings, for which no taxes are paid.

"A fireboat would be of infinitely more value to the city than both these stations," he said.

Referring to the firemen's request for a wage boost, the mayor said it was "a great shame" that they ignored his plea to "hold the line."

"They know what my stand is on wages," he said. "As far as I'm concerned we must do nothing which might increase the tax rate."

It was the 17-per-cent increase awarded the firemen by a conciliation board in 1952 which resulted indirectly in the closing of the Yates Street fire hall and dismissal of 10 firemen.

MOST EXPENSIVE

The mayor felt that a city-owned fireboat would protect Victoria's most expensive structures—those situated on the waterfront.

"We've had two lessons," he said in reference to the VMD and Salvage King fires. "To ignore them would be foolish."

The mayor felt that a fireboat could be used for fighting fires "in the heart of the city" if it was equipped with hose extensions. He indicated that because the harbor cut into the city centre, a fireboat would serve both ways. He said it might be used for ordinary towing service in the harbor when not called for fire duty.

He hinted also that if the city owned a fireboat, it would reduce the need for such a large fire department. Closing of the two outside departments would probably mean reduction in the fire-fighting staff by about 20 men.

The mayor said he may bring a proposal to council regarding the fireboat and fire department situation within the next few weeks.

The department's union representatives met City Manager Cecil Wyatt with their wage requests Tuesday afternoon. Officials estimate the 10 per cent increase and fringe benefits would cost $47,000 annually.

Survival on Ice Pack Grim Fight for Pilot

POINT BARROW, Alaska (AP)—A pilot who made a forced landing on the Arctic ice pack told here how he survived for a week without sleep at 50-below-zero temperatures before he was sighted by air force fliers searching in winter's almost endless darkness.

Juel Thebedeau vanished January 5 while flying from Fairbanks to Point Barrow where his wife was expected to give birth to twins. He was sighted Monday just as the organized search was about to be abandoned. This, Thibedau said, is what happened to him:

He was forced down north of the mouth of the Colville River on pack ice when the engine of his light plane quit because of the intense cold. He had only a small amount of food and no radio with which to summon aid.

He sat in the cabin of his light plane for five days, not daring to go to sleep because he was afraid he would freeze to death.

On the fifth day, Thebedeau ate his last food and set out for aid. He was 100 miles from Barrow but said he knew of cabins 50 miles away. The thermometer on the plane registered 40 below zero.

He cut holes in his parka so he could warm his gloveless hands against his body as he staggered over the pack ice. He was hungry but had no gun to shoot the Arctic fox he saw digging smelt out of cracks in the ice. He dared not take his hands from his body to dig out any of the fish for himself.

TRIED TO SIGNAL

Monday morning, the now-exhausted pilot heard a search aircraft one-half mile to the south of his position. He desperately tried to signal the plane by setting fire to his maps and computor, which were the last burnable items he possessed. But the plane passed on without sighting him.

About four hours later, the drone of another search plane was heard. This time the plane passed directly over him and the crew sighted him in the gloom.

The search pilot, unable to land on the jagged ice, summoned a smaller plane from Barrow.

Thebedau was put in hospital right alongside his wife who had given birth to the twins, a boy and a girl, while her husband was lost. He suffered minor frostbite to fingers, toes, cheeks and ears.

Backwoods Slayer Chills Community

COXBURG, Miss. (UP) — A backwoods Negro huntsman who left off hunting quail and squirrel to hunt while men kept this tiny community in a grip of terror yesterday as he stalked his fourth victim.

Neither snow and freezing wind nor a 400-man posse armed with high-powered rifles, pistols, shotguns and even pitchforks were able to stop 28-year-old Eddie Noel and his deadly .22 calibre rifle.

Police in Baton Rouge, La., picked up a suspect they believed might be Noel, but authorities here said they thought it was the wrong man. The suspect gave his name as Dan Ingeram, and was described as a bigger man than Noel.

Noel's vow to "take four white men to Hell with me," was still unfilled, but three have already died before his rifle and another was seriously wounded but expected to live.

Noel, who kept his shooting eye sharpened by shooting quail on the wing and matches out of his wife's teeth, began his deadly hunt last Saturday night by calmly killing a grocer. He then mortally wounded a deputy, was trapped by three posse members but killed one and wounded the other two and slipped through a 400-man posse which reported it had him trapped.

CCF Member Asks Cabinet For Flood Action Policy

Legislation to tame B.C.'s tumultuous rivers is requested by CCF MLA Robert M. Strachan of Cowichan-Newcastle.

In a letter to all cabinet ministers Wednesday, Mr. Strachan suggested the government introduce legislation at the coming session of the House to spread responsibility for long-term flood control among the departments of lands, agriculture and public works.

He also asked that the public works department be given immediate authority for on-the-spot action wherever flooding threatens.

Any citizen should be able to call on some responsible public official for quick action when flooding starts or a log jam forms, he said.

At present no department will act until a public highway or bridge is threatened, Mr. Strachan said. Often this is too late to prevent damage to farms and homes.

Precision Tools Turned to Junk

Six hundred dollars worth of junk that took 35 years to collect sums up the plight of machinist Hugh Duffield. Wednesday morning he found that was all that was left of his treasured tools after the $100,000 fire Tuesday night at the Victoria Machinery Depot No. 2 yard. He was one of 10 machinists who lost about $2,500 among them when their precision machine tools were ruined in the blaze.—(See story Page 15.)

Tiny Infant Survives Avalanches

VIENNA (AP)—Twenty-seven Alpine villagers were found crushed or smothered to death yesterday following a series of terrifying avalanches in the Alps. However, one of the victims who survives is a tiny infant dug out yesterday after 36 hours under the snow.

Half the valley homes were smashed. A late count showed 43 dead there, 42 missing and 51 injured in the avalanches loosed since Monday by a combination of heavy snowfalls and gales. Some died when the roofs of their homes tumbled about their heads, others from suffocation in the dread staubla-winen, the powder snow avalanches which choke their victims.

HUNDREDS HOMELESS

The valley catastrophe was only a part of the "white death" that left hundreds homeless, communications paralyzed, villages isolated and industry at a standstill in parts of the three nations.

Unofficial compilations showed 92 persons killed and 53 missing in Austria, Switzerland counted 19 dead and four missing. In Germany, six were known dead.

An American helicopter and a Swiss helicopter joined in relief work at Blons.

Judge Shot Dead By Wife-Deserter

WARREN, Pa. (UP)—A 26-year-old wife-deserter shot and killed a judge in his courtroom yesterday as the jurist prepared to send him to jail on non-support charges.

The gun-wielding defendant, Norman Moon, fled from the courtroom and tried to kill himself a few minutes later when state police caught up to him after an automobile chase a few miles from town. Moon shot himself through the neck, but Warren Hospital authorities said he probably will recover.

His victim, President Judge Allison D. Wade, 51, was shot through the heart and died on the floor in front of his bench. He had presided over the Warren and Forest County courts for 13 years.

The shooting occurred during a routine session in Judge Wade's courtroom on the second floor of Warren County's two-story, red brick courthouse.

Moon, a Connellsville, Pa., electrical worker, was called before the court for failure to comply with an order directing him to pay his wife, Janet, $30 a week. He refused to pay.

The dozen court attaches, attorneys and waiting witnesses in the 300-seat courtroom paid scant attention to the burly defendant as Judge Wade called him before the bench and asked, "Have you anything to say?"

"No," Moon growled and jerked a .45-calibre pistol from his pocket. District Attorney Myer Kornreich saw the gun and dashed for the doorway in the rear of the room. Moon sent two shots crashing after the fleeing prosecutor.

Turning, Moon shot Wade in the chest twice as the judge struggled to his feet, holding a chair in front of him. "I'm not going to sentence you," Wade pleaded.

Mumbling, "I'm shot," the judge backed down from his dais and fell fatally wounded face down in front of the empty jury box. A physician waiting to testify in the next case rushed to his assistance, but Wade died within minutes.

Key Witness Found In Reuther Shooting

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Detroit authorities moved Wednesday night to establish whether Donald Ritchie definitely has the key to the solution of the 1948 Walter Reuther shooting, or is the perpetrator of a spectacular hoax.

Also undecided was whether Ritchie will be questioned here, or across the river in Detroit. Earlier Wednesday Ritchie appeared in Essex County Court for an extradition hearing and balked at crossing into the United States.

His lawyer, Donald Morand, said that he had definite instructions that Ritchie intends to oppose extradition.

Detroit police say Ritchie is their key witness in the case against four men named in warrants in connection with the attempt on the life of Reuther, CIO president and United Auto Workers chief.

Ritchie surrendered at Preston, Ont., early Wednesday after a five-day flight from protective custody.

Ritchie was remanded in custody for eight days.

Ritchie is now named in an American assault-to-kill warrant in the attempted assassination of Reuther. Ritchie volunteered information that led a week ago to a warrant charging the four men with conspiracy and assault with intent to murder.

Friday, however, Ritchie escaped two policemen guards in a down-town Detroit hotel suite and skipped to Canada.

Ritchie kept his mouth shut after his surrender Wednesday, except to say he escaped by tricking his guards.

Plump Betty White, a former waitress, was picked up Tuesday night by Preston police who recognized the car she and Ritchie bought Monday in Chatham, Ont., with $1,400 of the money. She said Ritchie was going to Windsor by train.

But Ritchie went to Hamilton, took a taxi to Toronto, called police to give himself up, then changed his mind and took the taxi back to Preston, where he gave himself up at 3 a.m. to a reporter.

Sugar Daddy Squires Pretty Blonde Ghost

DUDLEY, England (AP)—Edward Westwood says there is a blond ghost in his house who wears lipstick and walks around nights with a bald-headed sugar daddy.

He appealed to the Birmingham Psychic Research Society to have investigators spend a night in the place and find out what is going on.

Westwood, who has moved out of the house pending developments, says the pretty blonde apparition has tipped one member of his family out of bed, grabbed another by the hair, and made the nights hideous by ringing a ghostly alarm clock.

He said she is sometimes alone and sometimes squired by the bald-headed chap, who apparently just goes along to watch.

Bernard Payne, an investigator for the society, said he will form a team to spend a night in the 100-year-old house.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

EVERY husband has heard his wife complain that she has to stay in the house and work an 18-hour day while he flits around meeting "interesting people."

In these little domestic sermons, men are pictured as drones (interesting drones, of course) who flit around rocking their wings in cheery salute to one another and landing at intervals to exchange a buzz of news, gossip, jokes and stimulating ideas.

* * *

Many a wife looks upon her husband's job as a flimsy pretext for the man to get out and make the social rounds, beyond wifely supervision. Some wives doubt that their husbands go to work at all. They are convinced that the men go straight to a cigar store in town, where there is a crap game under way in the back room.

The money a husband brings home on pay day represents his winnings in the game, these wives contend.

* * *

Some husbands counter their wives' argument by suggesting an exchange of jobs. "All right," they declare, "you get all my salary, so you might as well do my job. Tomorrow you go to the office in my place, and I'll stay home."

There is no record that such an offer was ever accepted. That's a pity. A day of soap opera and party-line listening might do a man good.

* * *

In sober truth, however, the girls do have a good case. They must endure a great deal of monotony. I have just thought of a rare way to prove to them that life can be (as the soap operas put it) beautiful; or even that life can be a rich and rewarding adventure.

I don't know whether I would undertake to prove to them that RO-mance can endure into middle life, and even beyond, as one epic of the suds undertakes to do. I'd have to give that one some thought. My wife is peering over my shoulder, and I don't like the look on her face.

* * *

Anyway, my plan is quite simple. Let a husband take a course in hypnosis at any reputable school of psychology or even at one of the disreputable ones, if the reputable ones won't have him.

Armed with hypnotic powers, let him go among the interesting people he meets every day, and persuade them all to come home the same evening to meet his wife.

* * *

I can see the man now—a kind of modern Pied Piper with a glittering eye, trailing behind him a mixed crew that would include his co-workers in his office, shop or store; a hitch-hiker; a man who tried to sell him some insurance; a process-server; a panhandler who asked him for a dime; an old girl friend who greeted him on the street, and her four children.

"Good evening, dear," he would say. "I brought some interesting people home for dinner. I knew you wouldn't mind."

On second thoughts, it might be easier for the man to hypnotise his wife.

Retirement Gift Ideal for Railman

Instead of ticket-selling from now on, Harold Rourke is going to take it easy.

Last night friends presented him with the chair to do it in.

The occasion marking the gift was Mr. Rourke's retirement party after 41 years' service with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

CHIEF CLERK

For the last 30 years Mr. Rourke was chief ticket clerk at the Victoria Wharf. Prior to that time he served on the boats.

More than 67 friends, including representatives of the CPR, U.S. and Canadian Customs and Immigration offices attended the party at the Business and Professional Women's Hall.

The gift was presented by Capt. J. Williams, manager of the British Columbia Coastal Service. A congratulatory wire was also received from H. C. James, passenger agent in Vancouver.

TAKES IT EASY

Mr. Rourke, now 65, said he intends to do nothing else than take it easy for a while.

"Later on I may find something to keep me occupied," he said, "but for a while I'm just going to sit around in that chair my friends so kindly gave me."

Death Closes Long Career Of Ex-Senator Barnard

Former Senator G. H. Barnard, a native Victorian, died yesterday morning at the Royal Jubilee Hospital at the age of 85.

Former Senator Barnard's career in public service was remarkable. During his life he was an alderman, Victoria's mayor, a member of parliament and finally a senator. He is believed to have been the only man ever to retire from the Senate, whose members are appointed for life.

Born in Victoria on October 9, 1868, his family bought "Duval's Cottage" from Chief Justice Needham in 1872 and he has lived at the Rockland Avenue home for the past 73 years.

ENTERED LAW OFFICE

After attending school in Victoria and Ontario, the young Harry Barnard entered the office of Messrs. Eberts and Taylor, as a law student in the summer of 1886, and was called to the bar in 1891.

The Barnards were an extraordinary political family, and Harry was brought up in the world of politics. His father, the famous stagecoach operator of Cariboo gold rush days (Barnard's Express) was member of the B.C. House from 1866 to 1871 and member of the House of Commons for Yale-Cariboo from 1878 to 1888.

The elder Barnard son, Frank, was elected to the House of Commons for Lillooet-Cariboo in 1887 and 1891, was lieutenant-governor of the province from 1914-19 and was later knighted. A son-in-law, J. A. Mara, was MLA for Kootenay in 1871, and speaker of the legislature from 1883 to1886.

INTERESTS BEGIN

About the turn of the century the future senator began taking an active interest in civic affairs. He was elected alderman in 1902, re-elected the following year and was chosen Victoria's mayor in 1904 and 1905.

After two years as mayor he retired from municipal politics but continued to work in the ranks of the then Liberal-Conservative party in Victoria. He became president of the local party and was elected first president of the Provincial Liberal-Conservative Association when it was formed in 1908.

In October of that year he achieved what everyone thought the impossible—he unseated that Liberal giant, William Templeman with a one vote majority. He was re-elected by majority of 500 in 1911.

Harry Barnard remained in the House of Commons until 1917 when he was appointed to the Senate.

RETIRED IN 1945

After 37 years in the Houses of Parliament he retired in November of 1945 and spent the the rest of his life with his wife at their Rockland Avenue home.

He is survived by his wife, Ethel B., at the family residence; a niece, Mrs. Alan Morkill and one nephew, J. L. Mara, both of Victoria; one grandnephew and one grandniece, John Mara and Miss Denise Mara, both of Vancouver, B.C.

Funeral services at Hayward's Funeral Chapel will be private. Cremation will follow.

Naval Officers Pick R. A. H. Lort

The Naval Officers' Association of Victoria last night elected R. A. H. Lort as president.

Other officers elected were R. M. Burns, vice-president; P. L. Sampson, secretary; and P. A. Ferteau, treasurer.

Executive members are H. T. Brown, Gar Dixon, Kenneth Jones, A. J. Temple and J. M. Todd.

Bonner Hears Policy Shifts Under Attack

VANCOUVER (CP)—Education Minister Robert Bonner and his deputy, H. L. Campbell, Tuesday night heard a Vancouver school trustee criticize "frequent variations" in British Columbia's education policy.

Trustee Milton Owen, speaking at the final meeting of the 1953 board, said "despite the finest of administrative personnel and the best of plans, the skill of a clairvoyant has been essential to compensate for unpredictable population shifts—and much more complicating, to offset the frequent variations experienced in government education policy."

Mr. Bonner and Mr. Campbell listened in silence. They were on hand to swear in Vancouver's 1954 school board.

Learning Endless In Plant Growth

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One of the things which make our hobby of gardening so fascinating is the fact that there seems to be no end to what you can learn about the growth habits of plants.

Some 25 years ago, I was pretty sure that I knew just about everything there was to know about horticulture. I had it all taped, and all the facts were as immutable as the multiplication table. Today, in the light of recent discoveries, I am plagued with a thousand doubts, and I have to admit that I don't know, with any degree of certainty, even such a thing as how a plant's roots extract nourishment from the soil.

PROBLEM OF LIGHT

A few years ago, we knew all about just how light affected the growth of plants. We knew, for instance, that a plant would bend towards the light, and pot plants had to be rotated daily to prevent them from becoming lopsided. We knew that seedlings too far from the light became too tall and lanky, too thin of stem and with a lack of robust constitution. But we never even suspected the effect that the number of hours of daylight had on the flowering of plants.

SIGNAL RECEIVED

We know now, for instance, that the reason a chrysanthemum blooms in the fall of the year is because the plant receives a signal from the shortening days which triggers the plant into forming flower buds.

For many years, florists had attempted to force chrysanthemums into bloom in mid-summer, or tried to delay them until Christmas, but with no results. No juggling with greenhouse temperatures had the slightest effect, and the 'mum would always bloom in its own good time, regardless.

Today, we can trick the plant into thinking it is autumn by covering it with a black cloth in the late afternoon, whereupon it obligingly produces flowers. Or we can prevent it from blooming until Christmas by kidding it along in the belief that it is still summer by keeping the greenhouse lights on until late evening.

SHORT, LONG DAYS

We have discovered that there are "short-day" plants and "long-day" plants, and they won't play unless the hours of daylight and darkness give them the correct signal for response. Corn, for instance, is a short-day plant, and while it is suprisingly hardy, you can't grow corn very far north because the arctic days are too long for it.

The same kind of signal effect, but this time working to produce the opposite effect, can be observed in the case of the cineraria.

If the lights in a room are turned on for a few hours every night after its buds are formed, the buds will open unusually rapidly, whereas the formation of buds can be delayed by darkening the plants for a few hours in mid-day.

CAUSE OF FAILURE

Home gardeners who grow their own poinsettias for Christmas are often disappointed in their failing to bloom. Very often, the cause of this failure can be traced to keeping the plant in a room where the lights are turned on through the evening. The plant becomes confused as to the season of the year, and refuses to bloom.

This peculiar phenomenom—the signalling of the time to flower by the number of hours of daylight — is called photoperiodism, and it is bound to have far-reaching effects in the art of gardening. In the greenhouse of the future, controlled lighting will play as important a part as controlled temperatures and humidity.

Passengers Shaken In Cable Car Stop

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Nineteen persons were shaken up Tuesday when a crowded cable car slammed to a halt, tossing the passengers to the floor and jarring its front windows from their frames. The sudden stop was caused by the car's brake hitting an obstruction in the underground slot where the moving power cable runs.

Board Protesting Ferry Situation

NANAIMO—Sparks flew at last night's meeting of Board of School Trustees, District 68, when it was learned that school children were left on the dock by operator of the Gabriola ferry this week. The regular ferry is at present up for annual overhaul. The substitute ferry apparently does not seem able to handle the traffic.

Having experienced unsatisfactory service during this period of overhauling in other years, the school board had contacted the department of public works on the matter early in December. A reply from the deputy minister dated December 18 stated the matter would be investigated.

CAPACITY NOT STATED

The substitute ferry has been passed for carrying of passengers but the board has not been informed as to how many it can safely carry. This week adult paying passengers were carried and some children were left for a later boat, arriving home after six p.m.

The department of public works pays Captain H. C. R. Davis, who operates the ferry service, a subsidy of $22,000 annually, according to school inspector Claude Campbell. Formerly the school board had paid Capt. Davis for carrying pupils.

Ball of Fire Flashes Across Startled East

TORONTO (CP) — A ball of fire that flashed across Ontario, Quebec and New York state at dawn may have fallen into Georgian Bay, says a University of Toronto expert in stellar physics.

"It was probably the size of a football, traveling up to 45 miles a second," said Dr. Helen Hogg of the university's Dunlap observatory at suburban Richmond Hill. "I'd guess it was 75 to 100 miles up" when seen.

Startled residents of Ontario and Quebec centres from Toronto to Montreal and north to Sudbury called police and radio stations for explanation. Many citizens thought it was a burning plane.

Dr. Hogg said reports reaching her were that the object went from east to west. One report, from Parry Sound, 120 miles north of Toronto, told of an explosion "like a 25-pound bomb" after a flash of fire.

"That blast indicates Parry Sound was probably less than 30 miles from the object's path," she said. "It may have landed in Georgian Bay west of there, or it may have burned out before reaching the earth."

REPORTS UNLIKELY

Widely-scattered rentres reported the flaming object slammed into the ground nearby. Dr. Hogg said, however, that this was unlikely.

"These things often appear to be coming to earth when they disappear over the horizon."

Experts were undecided on what the object should be called.

Dr. P. M. Millman of Ottawa, head of the stellar physics section of the Dominion observatory, said if it burned out before striking the earth it would be a fireball or meteor.

If it hit the earth, it would be a meteorite.

Dr. Hogg said the object was one of many "chunks of debris" floating in outer space which got caught in the earth's orbit. Gravity pulled it downward at fantastic speed and friction with the earth's atmosphere gave it a dazzling light.

Mighty Puff Quells Blaze

SEYMOUR, Wis (AP) — Duane Miller, a man with a set of Paul Bunyan lungs, huffed and puffed and blew out a fire in an automobile Tuesday night before the fire department arrived.

Miller was awakened by the commotion when Mrs. Francis Heuttl aroused a neighbor. She was driving home when her car became filled with smoke.

Dressing quickly, Miller ran to the car, hitched the hood, took a deep breath and blew out the fire just as two fire trucks and a police car came down the road.

Surprise Element Basis Of Defense, Says Chief

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said yesterday the new U.S. defense plan of swift retaliation against aggression is based on the proved value of the surprise element of warfare—hitting back when and where the enemy doesn't expect it.

Actually, Mr. Eisenhower told a news conference there is really nothing very new about the concept outlined by Secretary of State Dulles in a speech Tuesday night.

Dulles said U.S. military and foreign policy is being based on a plan to meet any aggression with "a great capacity to retaliate, instantly, by means and at places of our choosing."

Dulles made it plain, without saying so, that the means could be atomic bombs and the places could be Russia or Red China.

Mr. Eisenhower said it is an established fact that the more destructive become the bombs or other missiles, the more value there is in the element of surprise.

He said the U.S. defeat at Pearl Harbor was attributable to the surprise element.

Mr. Eisenhower's discussion of the defense policy, and Dulles' speech, made it clear that the administration's strategy is based on the ability to hit back rather than keep heavy troop concentrations all over the world.

That was the theory behind the recent decision to withdraw two American divisions from Korea.

Mr. Eisenhower said he believes the United States is getting a better balance in its defense forces every day. He rejected the idea that balanced force means an equal division of men and money among the three major services. He said the whole idea is to adjust the forces to the needs of the times and to maintain a balance with respect to the job at hand.

Problems of Freer Trade Clearing, Say Ministers

SYDNEY (Reuters) Finance ministers of nine Commonwealth nations announced Wednesday that difficulties over freeing their trade from import restrictions are being successfully reduced.

A statement issued during the ministers' conference here said the problems of freer trade and of making sterling freely convertible with the dollar are on their way to a solution.

"There are signs that world trade and the payments position is moving toward a new post-war state of equilibrium," the statement said. "It is now recognized that difficulties of achieving convertibility and freedom of trade from imports restrictions although real are being reduced to proportions which the sterling area can handle with a prospect of success."

The statement said the finance ministers agreed greater development of their nation's productive abilities is the soundest solution for Commonwealth economic problems. It welcomed Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler's assurance that Britain would make a special effort to make capital available for Commonwealth development.

Referring to development plans, the statement said:

"Generally the trend of development in sterling area countries is on the right lines. That is, it is steadily building up the dollar-saving capacity of the sterling area as well as strengthening the export position."

Students Idle at $20 a Day Give Clue to Mystery Wrecks

MONTREAL (CP) — Human guinea pigs, who have weird hallucinations in isolation cubicles at McGill University's psychological laboratories, may provide the answer to many unexplained plane crashes, train wrecks and highway accidents.

Fifty students volunteered for the tests at $20 a day. They "saw things"—zig-zag patterns, dots of lights, funny little men and animals—during the prolonged monotony which can be experienced by plane pilots, locomotive engineers or truck and passenger-car drivers.

Results of the test indicate that not only are imaginary objects seen, but real and threatening objects may be overlooked.

Prof. D. O. Hebb, chairman of the McGill department of psychology, directed the investigation, which has financial support of the Defense Research Board of Canada.

The first formal report on the pioneer investigation will be submitted to the Canadian Journal of Psychology by Dr. Woodburn Heron, Dr. W. Harold Sexton and T. H. Scott.

The condition of monotony in the cubicle-isolation tests is brought on by putting the student into a situation in which he does nothing. All the students reported this difficult, even at $20 a day.

The more will-power used, the sooner the hallucinations were likely to be brought on. The answer is to provide relief from a monotonous situation.

One student gave up after nine hours. The most enduring lasted five days. The students tended to sleep during early parts of their isolation. Later they slept less, became bored and irritable and appeared eager for stimulation. They sang, whistled, talked to themselves and tried many little diversions.

On coming out of the cubicle the subjects seemed dazed and confused and reported headaches, mild nausea and fatigue, but returned to normal in a few hours.

The hallucinations involved a wide range of visual imagery—dots of light, lines, simple geometrical patterns, "wallpaper" patterns, "a row of little yellow men," processions of squirrels, prehistoric animals and cartoon-like figures.

Some students said they could hear people in the hallucinations talking. One student said he heard music. The subjects showed a loss in thinking capacity.

The subjects wore goggles which let in only a hazy light, kept their heads in a U-shaped foam rubber cushion which permitted them to lie on either side or on their backs and wore closely-fitting gloves, with special cuffs up to the elbow.

Oddities

HALF DAY, Ill. (AP)—A mother who had protested her son's expulsion from school by a sitdown strike was ordered from the school Tuesday and arrested.

Mrs. Marie Dawson, 39, was charged with disorderly conduct. She had been sitting on a folding chair in the seventh-grade classroom of the Half Day Elementary School since last Wednesday. She said she intended to sit there every day until her son was reinstated. Officials said the youth, Frank, 13, was expelled because of truancy.

CALGARY (UP) — Bert Rackett, 16, Tuesday claimed the title of gum chewing champion of Canada. He crammed in 48 standard-sized sticks and chewed them for three hours, winning a $1.50 bet.

SPOKANE (AP) — E. J. Minor, a railroad man who has traveled an estimated 1,095,000 miles and never left home, retired Wednesday. Minor, 70, has been an engineer on a switch engine in the Spokane yards for 30 years.

Waterfront Fire Protection

AS Mayor Harrison points out, Tuesday evening's fire in the VMD shipyards and the earlier blaze on board the Ss. Salvage King illustrated the need for waterfront fire protection by means of fireboats. At the same time the latest conflagration demonstrated the high efficiency of privately-owned fireboats already in operation, and also their quick availability in emergency.

With so much valuable property fringing the waterfront, and with so many industries handling highly flammable materials located there, means of directing water from the seaward side obviously are essential. In view of the demonstration at the VMD yards, however, might it not be more practical for the city council to enter into some financial assistance agreement with the private operators of tugs and scows equipped to fight fires? Such an arrangement would appear to afford as much protection as the city needs; and certainly it would be much less expensive to the taxpayers. A mutually-acceptable formula for payment should not be too difficult to work out. It could take the shape of an annual subsidy to boats permanently located inside the harbor, calculated on the delivery capacity of the firefighting equipment; or it could take the form of payment for service on each occasion when fireboats were called into action.

It is unlikely that the city could acquire a fireboat of adequate size and equipment for anything less than $100,000. On top of that would be the annual cost of maintenance (no small item by any means) and of manning the boat so as to keep it on call 24 hours a day. The city has no other use for a boat that would fit in with fire duties; so that desirable as civic ownership of one might be represented, it is questionable if Victoria could afford to keep a vessel eating its head off in cost while tied to a wharf.

"I've been waiting at that other door for 30 years"

Outstanding B.C. Figure

THE passing of Mr. G. H. Barnard yesterday at the sturdy age of 85 brings to a close a distinguished career, of which 43 years were spent in exceptional public service. As alderman and mayor of Victoria, Conservative member for this constituency in the House of Commons, and later for nearly three decades a member of the Red Chamber, the late Mr. Barnard was widely known and very highly respected. A lifelong Conservative, who as a young barrister came to the fore as one of the most able men of the day, his interest in that party and his earnest efforts on behalf of the city and province never flagged.

Elected to the Commons in 1908, Mr. Barnard was called to the Senate in 1917 and served there for 28 years. He retired from the Senate, a life appointment in Canada, in 1945 after more than 40 years of public service. Up until the end his opinion and advice were sought on a wide range of matters by his many friends and admirers. A son of the man who established the Cariboo stage in the goldrush days, the late Mr. Barnard was a pioneer, too, in every sense of the word. His business acumen and his friendly interest in the lives of others never failed.

Victoria and many other places in British Columbia will bear witness for a long time to come of the foresight and ability of a pioneer citizen who loved the province and gave to it and his home city the best fruits of his years. To his widow and surviving relatives will go the sincere sympathy of the community and province, in the loss of an outstandingly fine British Columbian.

It Should Be the Norm

IN discussing the theft of $160,000 in new bills from the U.S. federal printing plant the Christian Science Monitor says the most remarkable thing about this type of case is the fact of its rarity. This comment is made in relation to the frequency with which underworld characters hold up banks and stores across the line, or indulge in other criminal practices that involve robbery. By contrast the government agencies which handle legal tender as casually as though it were sacks of potatoes—mints, treasury vaults, reserve banks, etc.—have a splendid record for probity.

That of course is a good thing, and happily Canadian institutions of similar type can report an equal degree of personal honesty. Money in the hands of government employees, whether newly minted or old currency, is a public trust and as such carries with it perhaps a particular bond of honor. This should be automatic, nevertheless. There should be nothing special about being honest, and if the day comes when there is then a sharp collapse in the standards of ordinary society will have occurred.

The Monitor would not have this aspect in mind, however, in patting U.S. federal currency employees on the back. Its reference was aimed to offset underworld gougings by a reminder that government agencies invariably are without blemish. Yet use of the word remarkable could be misconstrued. It might imply that society has reached the stage where honesty becomes news, instead of the other way round. Undoubtedly it is to the credit of government employees anywhere that their ethics should be above suspicion, but it becomes even more to their credit when the need to refer to their integrity is superfluous.

SCHOOL DISCIPLINE

Sir,—I heard with a great deal of interest the last Teacher-Parent broadcast.

It seems to me that the discussion was held without looking into the root of the question. The advocation of strong discipline (rod) fell together with the prohibitions and strong hand of the dictators. If a teacher is capable of making a subject interesting, the child will be attentive and there is discipline.

The Great Thinker, pedagogue Pestalozzi, had affectionate sympathy towards his pupils.

VETERANS' ALLOWANCES

Sir—The failure of the 20 men in Ottawa who formulate, direct and dictate government policy, to recommend legislation to increase veterans' allowances and lift the ceiling on permissible income, indicates complete bankruptcy on the part of Liberal leadership in Canada.

Few Canadians, outside of Ottawa, would dare to assert that Canada's old veterans had not fully earned the right to a decent standard of living, long denied them by a miserly allowance and a discriminatory means test. Only political double-talk can justify the present treatment of men who, in any single month in the trenches of France and Belgium almost 40 years ago, made far greater sacrifices for Canada than all our silver-tongued orators and would-be statesmen in Ottawa in the past century.

One corner of the proposed new Canadian flag, the design of which is such a burning issue among our super-patriotic politicians, might well portray an emaciated old veteran, shoulders bent under his heavy load, trudging along a stony highway, the flag held high in his hand and his heart in despair. This, I suggest, would be a true and lasting symbol of Canadian Liberalism for future generations to think about . . .

SONS OF FREEDOM

Sir,—Referring to the news item in your edition of Thursday, January 7, I feel that I must register a strong protest at the treatment apparently accorded to the Doukhobor Sons of Freedom.

It would appear that their children have been taken from them because they refuse to allow them to attend the Canadian national (public) schools. If, as I believe, their objection is based upon purely religious reasons, it is definitely not in accordance with the principles of this democracy to refuse them religious freedom.

While I cannot agree with the methods of these people in their endeavors to obtain what they truly consider to be their rights, it is cruel and unjust forcibly to remove their children from the only love and security a child knows.

The Doukhobors are not by any means alone in their objection to the Canadian school system. The law says that all children must receive adequate education, but if Professor Hilda Neatby's word for it is to be given credence—"the graduates of our elementary schools and high schools literally cannot read, write or think"—they are not missing much in the line of education.

I cannot believe that the Sons of Freedom are so unintelligent as to refuse any form of education for their children, therefore, what is the objection to them having their own schools, kept by themselves and presided over by one of their own people?

No person or state has any right whatever to take children from parents who love and care for them and this action by the Canadian authorities will, I'm sure, be regarded with disgust by thinking people all over the world.

Maybe we don't agree with their principles, but to the Sons of Freedom these principles are real enough to base their whole lives upon; which is more than can be said for the average man in the street in Canada or elsewhere.

Love and a sincere desire to understand can solve any problem.

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

NO wise man outside of his cups will trample on the green bayonets of a thistle—nemo me impune lacessit—the subsequent fate being more pointed than a blackberry thorn.

But some people, the Queen's advisers for instance, never seem to learn.

As I listened to the Royal radio broadcast last Christmas morn and heard the phrase ". . . voyage right round the world, the first that any Queen of England has been privileged to make . . ." I thought to myself, "now there'll be a-to-do and a half, never fear." I expected when I got back to the office I should be harangued harshly on the telephone, although of course I had nothing whatever to do with what the Queen said.

(A small detail like that doesn't usually daunt my tartan friends, however.)

On this occasion, though, the Victoria Scots were quiescent—too much Christmas pudding perhaps. But not some others.

* * *

I have just been reading about the St. Andrew's Society of Glasgow; they were exceedingly wroth and have dispatched to the Queen Mother, the PM and other notables, these trenchant words:

"The suggestion that the voyage of Her Britannic Majesty round the world is being taken in the role of Queen of England is not in accordance with fact. As monarch of the homeland her status is surely Quern of the United Kingdom of Great Britain."

And in point of strict accuracy they are right, I suppose. Nowhere in statute law or modern constitutional usage is there a Queen of England.

The Glaswegians had another bone to pick with the Queen's counsellors, a reference I missed, to wit:

"The council of the society intensely deplore and emphatically protest against . . . the reference to Queen Elizabeth of England (1558-1603) as a forebear of her Britannic Majesty. Queen Elizabeth of England died unmarried and childless. The ancestor and forebear of our noble Queen was Scotland's contemporary monarch, Mary Queen of Scots, not Elizabeth of England."

That will be a tough biological fact to shake aside, no?

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown, it has been said, perhaps not when the head is that of the Second, or should I be diplomatic and say the First (?), Elizabeth. But uneasy perhaps at this moment are some of those who put pen to paper in the Queen's name.

The society proceeds further, thus:

"The council urge that the words Britain, Britons, and British shall be used at all times when Britain or the British nation and peoples are referred to. They also urge the termination of the use of the words England, English, or Anglo unless it is intended specifically to refer to England or her people."

And just yesterday a reader said to me it should have been made plain that when speaking on Christmas morn from Auckland the Queen was speaking as the Queen of New Zealand.

We live in a tip-toe world, patriotically speaking.

Reports from Ottawa

I ASKED three of our atomic experts the other day if the Americans were talking nonsense by claiming they could take the bang out of the material in atomic bombs, so it couldn't be used in weapons, but could be used in power plants.

One of them, a Chalk River scientist, gave me a firm "no comment"—and then asked me not to quote him by name!

The second man, one of our top brains in science, said it could be done by adding some other substance to the fissionable material.

Of course, he added, a scientist can take out of a mixture anything he puts into it. But the diluting material can be extremely difficult to remove, he explained, thus discouraging anyone from trying. He wouldn't tell me what the denaturing agent is. That's very much a secret, he said. Then he ended by saying that what he had told me was only for background, and that I mustn't quote him.

* * *

The third physicist, a college professor, isn't privy to atomic secrets and so could comment only from his general knowledge of the subject.

He thought the only thing which scientists could add to fissile uranium 235 which they couldn't take out again very quickly was non-fissile uranium 238. He explained that such a dilution of pure U 235 would be a reversal of the refining process which, in producing fissile uranium for atomic weapons, is directed at removing all the inactive U 238.

For example, he said, a mixture of the two uraniums which was 10 times richer in U 235 than is raw uranium ore could be used in power plants, but not in atomic weapons. Such "underproof" uranium would have to be re-refined for military use, he said, "and that's a tremendously slow and costly process."

His final comment was, "If you use what I've told you, don't quote me."

* * *

That was the only thing on which the three scientists were in full agreement. They didn't want to be quoted. But in that they weren't exceptional. It's customary for government officials to talk to newsmen, only on a don't-quote-me basis. Civil servants in this country generally adhere to the British tradition of the anonymity of the civil service—and besides, a civil servant is often too fearful of political attack, government displeasure, or just plain "repercussions" if he talks on the record. Scientists are particularly wary because it's easy for a reporter untrained in science to misunderstand and misquote them.

Thus many news stories originating in Ottawa are cluttered by the repeated attribution of statements to anonymous spokesmen, officials, sources and circles.

In the Commons a few weeks ago Fred S. Zaplitny (CCF, Dauphin, Man.) asked the government to identify the "high ranking government spokesmen" whose comments on wheat marketing had been quoted in the Winnipeg Free Press. The government couldn't, of course, and ignored Zaplitny's request.

The CCF member didn't go so far as to say that newspapermen shouldn't quote sources they cannot identify by name, but some critics have.

The answer to them, I think, is indicated by this report on how scientists can turn potential atomic bombs into materials which can be used to light homes and drive machinery. The comments of two of these anonymous scientists explain a lot. Naturally I'd like to identify them by name. But if I did, all I'd have to report would be that physicists Blank and Blink declined to comment.

Women and Ashtrays

(From The New York Times)

WOMEN have many peculiar ways, but none more peculiar than this one of the ashtrays. Just why should an ashtray be clean? An ashtray is like the fireplace in that as a result of its natural function it always becomes a little grimy.

There is sense to keeping the silver clean, of course, and to having even the kitchen plates spotless. But just why, among all their peculiar ways, do women grow beserk at the sight of a little clean ash lying in the place designed for it?

Further; the ashtray is an invention of women; it must be. Left to his own devices, any normal man would just flick the ashes to the floor, which is the proper place for them.

But a normal man never is left to his own devices, and so back a bit, women invented the ashtray. That was the first meddling with the joys of smoking, the first muscling in on a pleasure by a species of gangsterdom. And the second, and far worse, is the odd insistence on the notion that the ashtrays be kept clean.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

IN the bus yesterday, I got in the seat ahead of an an-duher. She was a lady. She talked no more than average ladies do, in buses. Her voice was no more penetrating than most ladies find necessary to make their voices heard in buses. But she pronounced the word "and" an-duh.

And she ended every sentence she uttered with the word an-duh. It is what you might call the checkmate word. It is a stopping word, or holding word. It leaves her in possession of the conversation while she thinks what to say next. It goes like this:

"I telephoned Marge this morning an-duh. She hasn't got over her New Year's party yet. George is still mad at her, an-duh. You know that Christmas present I sent her? The Indian Tree plate? Well, she's broken it already an-duh. Guess who I saw yesterday! Lily Booth an-duh."

You see how it works? The other lady can't get a word in, because the an-duh, uttered slowly holds the floor, as they say in parliamentary usage.

It also has a certain fascinating or hypnotic effect. I gave up trying to read the morning paper because the an-duh kept prodding me in the back of the neck in the most disturbing fashion. There was nothing else to do but listen to the news about Lily Booth and an-duh all about the new butcher an-duh the possibility of going on a motor trip to Arizona in March an-duh.

It is about 38 blocks from my bus stop to the office, and in that distance, using the margin of my newspaper for a tally, I pencilled 47 words that the other lady uttered.

Maybe she was one of those silent, reserved types. But when the two of them got off the bus at the main downtown corner one stop ahead of mine, the an-duh lady was leading. And I distinctly saw the other lady make a face at the back of the an-duh lady.

I made one, too, and stuck my tongue out for a silent though ardent raspberry.

Dead Sea Live Issue

By J. L. HAYS, from Haifa

IT is perfectly true you cannot sink in the waters of the Dead Sea. So laced with mineral salts are they that you just rest on the surface as if you were relaxing on a vast cushion. Furthermore, it's too thick to swim in comfortably.

But the Dead Sea does have its merits. It has, in fact, one of the world's richest reservoirs of mineral wealth. Dissolved in its waters are an estimated 40,000,000,000 tons of minerals—including lucrative potash, phosphates, asphalt and bituminous lime.

And now Israel and Jordan, both near bankruptcy—and relying on American dollar aid and British loans and subsidies respectively to maintain even a pretense of economic respectability—are well embarked on a sink-or-swim race for the wealth of the sea in which people neither sink nor swim.

With the Jordanians holding the northern and eastern shores and the Israelis the southern and western, the rival fortune hunters have equal territorial opportunities.

Yet while the Jordanians lost valuable time in long-drawn-out negotiations granting an operating concession to an American firm, the Israelis raced ahead with the construction of a 70,000-ton-a-month potash plant.

Now the Israelis have already made up their first big export shipment of Dead Sea potash—5,000 tons to the Japanese, in exchange for Japanese cod liver oil. A first small consignment of potash (250 tons) has also been shipped to England.

It is on the Japanese—now so efficiently invading Middle East markets—that the Israelis are banking for quick profits. They hope their first shipment will be followed by regular monthly orders for 5,000 tons—with a starting turnover of around $1,000,000 a year—and that the Japanese will eventually provide some dollar commodities, as well as the cod liver oil, in exchange.

The Israelis are optimistic enough to plan building a new harbor on their Gulf of Aqaba outlet to the Red Sea. This would enable Japan-bound freighters, otherwise tied to the Israeli Mediterranean port of Haifa, to bypass the Suez Canal—where the unforgiving Egyptians have a habit of interfering with ships carrying Israeli-originated cargoes.

The port has still to be built, of course, and now it is up to the Americans to see if they can cut down the Israelis' lead on behalf of Jordan.

Road communications to the ports are most likely to decide who will dig deepest and fastest into the mineral treasure trove as time goes by.

However, it is not so much a race for the minerals—there is plenty of everything for everybody—as it is for satisfied customers, who are not as plentiful.

Destroyer Iroquois Homeward-Bound

OTTAWA (CP) — The destroyer Iroquois, only Canadian warship to suffer fatal casualties during the Korean war, is on her way home for the second time.

The navy announced Wednesday the Iroquois will have logged about 48,000 miles during her second Korean tour when she arrives at Halifax early in February. She left Canada last April.

Three members of the Iroquois' crew were killed when an enemy shell struck the ship in 1952. About a dozen men received minor inujries—at the time.

Berlin Preliminary Talks Collapse in Disagreement

BERLIN (Reuters) — Talks between the three Western commandants of Berlin and a Russian representative which were intended to pave the way for a four-power foreign ministers' conference January 25 have broken down, a Western communique said early Wednesday.

The communique said the talks failed because the delegates could not agree on a site for the ministers' parley or on any other arrangements.

News of the breakdown was announced shortly after Maj.-Gen. Thomas Timberman, the American commandant, Britain's Maj.-Gen. Charles Coleman and France's Gen. de Brigade Pierre Manceau-Demiau concluded their fourth discussion with Sergi A. Dengin, Berlin representative of the Soviet high commission. Their main task was to pick a site.

The meeting lasted 14 hours. Held in the French headquarters here, it was the longest since they began their talks about a week ago.

Previous meetings were held at the American, British and Soviet headquarters.

A French spokesman reported that Dengin said that possibly the foreign ministers could decide on a site themselves.

The Soviet delegate also declared he was not authorized to decide such issues as the number of foreign ministers' meetings to be held in West Berlin and the number to be held in the Eastern zone.

Mme. St. Laurent Pares Home Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Mme. St. Laurent is an economical housekeeper.

Last year, the public accounts show, she operated the prime minister's official residence for $7,249 less than the government budget provided. Appropriation for the annual upkeep was $25,000 and expenses last year were $17,751 — $9,823 for salaries, $4,633 for food, $1,943 for entertainment, $694 for uniforms, $82 for writing paper and office supplies and $533 for miscellaneous.

Mr. St. Laurent accepted the residence on condition that he pay $5,000 a year out of his own pocket for upkeep. So actual cost to the taxpayer last year was $12,751.

Prime Minister St. Laurent spent less than $200 of the taxpayer's money on official travel last year while 11 of his ministers each spent more than 10 times that much.

Public accounts for the fiscal year ending last March 31, tabled in the Commons Tuesday, showed that the big spender in official travel and expenses in the cabinet was Agriculture Minister Gardiner. He drew $4,610.28.

Mr. St. Laurent's expense vouchers added up to just $191.20.

Black Hand Suspect

PORT CREDIT (CP)—Police Chief Joseph Nelson said yesterday he has "reason to believe" Mafia terrorists may be connected with the fall of a young woman from a speeding Canadian National Railways train here on Tuesday.

The Mafia, also known as the Black Hand, is a terrorist society of crime and violence that originated in Sicily.

Sophie DiDomenico, 26, was seen tumbling down the embankment by a railway switchman as the train roared by. She was taken to hospital in Toronto, where authorities say her injuries are not serious and that she is recovering.

Chief Nelson said he believes the Mafia was attempting to procure Miss DiDomenico for immoral purposes, and that when she objected she was hurled from the train.

GIANT ORGANIZATION

"Italian residents at Port Credit tell me there is a giant Mafia organization preying on Italian-Canadians and a giant shakedown racket of which procuring girls for immoral purposes is a part," Chief Nelson said.

Port Credit, a village of 3,700, is 10 miles west of Toronto.

Police said Miss DiDomenico came to Canada from Quilla province in Italy two years ago. She lived in Montreal until she moved to Brantford two or three weeks ago, seeking work as a housekeeper. She left Brantford last Sunday to return to Montreal.

Straight Up and Down, Too

Inventor Calls for Plane that Flies Itself

NEW YORK (UP)—A noted aeronautical engineer and inventor said yesterday that the U.S. needs a cheap airplane which can do the following:

Take off and land straight up and straight down.

Fly in a straight-line at speeds up to 300 miles an hour.

Require no more of the operator than to steer it and regulate its speed.

Land safely by means of radar even with the operator asleep.

Grover Loening, inventor of the amphibious plane and a leading aeronautical engineer since 1911, was complaining because the U.S. is not "building out of our extensive air lore a great manufacturing industry, like the automotive industry, which will develop an air vehicle for an individual's personal service."

Military orders, no matter how vast, will never build such an industry, he said. Commercial aviation can't—about 1,000 planes now do the airlines' flying. By contrast, "45,000,000 automobiles—private vehicles of transport — are woven intimately into the life of this country to such a degree that crowded streets and roads are making motor travel increasingly impractical. Still, private car production is on an ascending curve.

Auditor-General Criticizes Spending

By BUF, CP

OTTAWA—The man who keeps a gimlet eye on government spending has again chided several departments and ministers for the way in which the taxpayers' dollars—some 4,000,000,000 of them—were handled last year.

Watson Sellar, Canada's auditor-general, Tuesday issued his annual blue book—about a two-pound tome—on the public accounts of Canada for the fiscal period, 1952-53.

The thick valume is always awaited with a certain measure of trepidation by the government, and with hopeful anticipation by the opposition.

Referring to the Colombo Plan, Mr. Sellar said that up to July 31, no report had been received that India had put up counterpart funds for $10,000,000 worth of wheat shipped from Canada in 1952.

The shipments did not meet requirements under the Colombo Plan, which were "to assist in the economic development" of southeast Asia. It was agreed that India would make appropriate counterpart deposits of rupees in a special fund as the wheat was delivered, up to the equivalent of $10,000,000, by December 31, 1952.

The fund was to be used for economic development projects. Canada was to be consulted and informed periodically of the state of the fund.

Mr. Sellar said parliament should keep a keener watch on how the health and welfare department spends the $27,500,000 earmarked yearly for health grants.

In one instance, he said, federal funds were given to cover 96 hospital beds at $1,000 a bed. He said 48 rooms were wired for two beds each, but the rooms were fitted with just one bed apiece.

A 1948 grant to help build and outfit another hospital was used to pay for equipment that had been paid for in 1944 and used in a temporary hospital for four years.

Some $26,000 was contributed to a 26-bed hospital designed primarily for the needs of students at a university. The money should have been regarded as a donation towards the cost of running the university, he said.

A military camp Building was sold in February, 1948, for $6,523 and then bought back by the defense department in October, 1952, for $10,000.

Certain pension payments allocated for RCAF personnel were "overspent" by some $451,720.

Army pay accounting was in such shape that "investigations of discrepancies . . . are so far in arrears that the accuracy of the accounts is still under audit review."

Several instances existed in air force accounts where reserve medical officers were paid professional fees and at the same time got service pay and allowances. It was "undesirable that two sources of compensation be simultaneously in effect, especially when the pay and allowances of rank are predicated upon full-time service," he said.

The defense production department obtained cabinet approval for a contract for 96 refueling tanks on a firm price basis, and then made progress payments totaling $763,000 by the end of the year when only 29 units had been delivered.

In several cases, contracts approved by the cabinet had been changed by either Defense Production Minister Howe or his department.

The transport department paid $99,000 to Peterborough, Ont., for a new bridge over the Trent Canal and, $15,000 was paid to the city of Salaberry de Valleyfield for a roadway across the old Beauharnois Canal. Mr. Sellar pointed out that the government had no title in the Peterborough bridge and the Beauharnois Canal had not been in use for many years.

He said both agriculture and fisheries departments had made grants toward contruction of the same cold storage plant.

Instead of listing money received for Canada's interest in certain properties as revenue, Mr. Sellar said, the government used it to offset expenditures. Thus the moneys were not voted, as they ssould have been, by parliament.

The word electricity comes from the Greek for amber, a substance that has magnetic properties when rubbed, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Faced with ever-increasing costs of operation, which has seen budgets skyrocket to upwards of $300,000 a season, Canadian football clubs are understandably beginning to wonder if they haven't got a tiger by the tail.

Competition with U.S. pro clubs for the best American talent plus even keener competition among themselves for Canadian players has increased costs to the stage where it takes all-out promotion and full civic backing to make ends meet. Just the same, it's not at all likely that anything can be done about the number of imports. Cutting down from eight would give the Canadian game less appeal and increasing the number would not only add to costs but stifle to a certain extent plans to increase the number of calibre Canadian players.

Imports, whether you like it or not, are the big reason Canadian football has grown to its present stature in a few short years. And imports are needed to keep it at the top, more particularly as the ever-increasing use of television has made household words of the names of the better U.S. college players and there is nothing in the foreseeable future to indicate Canada will produce enough calibre players to come close to stocking the nine major clubs.

Who do the fans go to see at the games if it isn't such as Billy Vessels, Rollie Myles, Glen Dobbs, Dick Huffman, Martin Ruby, Tex Coulter, Sam Etcheverry, Mac Speedie, Choo Choo Roberts, Avatus Stone, John Henry Johnson, Lou Kusserow, Jack Jacobs, et al? And who do you think the fans at Vancouver will go to see this year when the Lions start to roar—the few good Canadians they will have or the Johnny Lattners, Arnie Weinmeisters and other import stars?

It may be a vicious circle but cutting down on the number of imports now allowed wouldn't be at all wise. Fans are used to the best and the calibre has to be kept up if they are to continue to turn out in sufficient numbers. And, after all, Saskatchewan Roughriders, operating in Regina, smallest city in big-time football, showed a net profit of $29,000 in 1953, and Edmonton and Winnipeg were in the black by $12,500 and $13,172, respectively.

That shows the budget can be met under present conditions but the margin is small enough to warn against any import increase. If there is any change it should be to the rule which permits an import to be classified as a "Canadian" after four seasons of Canadian football. This one should read that he becomes a Canadian under those circumstances only if he takes out citizenship papers and becomes a full-time resident of the country which supplies him with his livelihood.

Bunny Allen appears to be a cinch for some award or other in 1954. Allen, a "white hunter," has undertaken to guide a party of 27 on a lion-hunting expedition to Kenya and Tanganyika. What's so odd about that? Just that the 27 are an assorted group of females from 27 years to 60 and, but for the natives, Allen will be the only male in the party . . . look for Brooklyn Dodgers to trade Jackie Robinson if they can get a good outfielder or pitcher. Robinson isn't needed in the Brooklyn infield, which has Gil Hodges, Junior Gilliam, Pee Wee Reese and Billy Cox, and experiments last season disclosed he is no outfielder . . . Steve Black of the Calgary Stampeders, who probably would have led the WHL in scoring this season but for injuries, has had nothing but the worst of luck in encounters with Ross Lowe this season. On the Cougars' first trip he came out with a broken collar bone. Just back in action, he banged into Lowe again when the Cougars made their second eastern swing and again a shoulder injury has put him on the sidelines . . . Victoria Tyees may sign Gordie Beecroft, young Kamloops outfielder. He played against the Victoria club when they trained at the Interior centre in 1950 and although only 15, showed some exceptional outfielding talent which had even oldtimers marveling at his ability to go get 'em . . . Kenny Richardson, hard-hitting infield veteran who has been around the WIL for some time, has written to the Tyees to express his willingness to play a season in Victoria . . . the current issue of Look has a fine article on big-time boxing which should interest everyone who follows the sport, at ringside or by television . . . Tony Folk and his Duncan rink experienced the thrill of a lifetime Saturday when an eight-ender on the 10th end cinched his game against H. L. Merritt. Folk, incidentally, is playing second for Ollie Penzer's Duncan rink, which is a good bet to be one of the two Vancouver Island rinks to continue in the Macdonald's Brier competition . . . and, lastly, there's a rumor that Gogie Stewart, the flashy little inside of new Westminster's soccer Royals who has been trying to make a place with Everton, is returning to B.C. If it's true, it would not be a bad idea if Victoria United and the Shamrocks get together to try to bring him all the way across the straits. He'd be a real addition to both clubs. . .

Merchant Goalie Smothers Puck

Merchant goalie George Hall drops to his knees to block puck and Merchant defenseman Phil Andrejkew holds off Nanaimo forward in first-period action in last night's Commercial Hockey League game at Memorial Arena. Nanaimo's Don Plensky (9) waits for possible loose puck while referee Ross Valliere (left) is right on top of play. Clippers, although shorthanded, won first game against Merchants on Memorial Arena ice this season to take solid grip on first place.

Wednesday night scores: Navy 7, V's 3; Merchants 2, Nanaimo 3.

Next game, Saturday: Navy at Nanaimo.

BY IAN GLENDAY

Nanaimo Clippers, minus league scoring leader Arnie Duggan and five other players, won their first game against Merchants on Memorial Arena ice last night, scoring three times in an action-filled third period to edge the defending champions, 3-2.

Not making the trip along with Duggan, sitting out the second game of a two-game suspension, were Joe Zubach, George Milford, Jack Murphy, Fred Medley and Lawrence Plensky but the Clippers still had enough left.

In the second Commercial Hockey League game of the night, Navy surprised by coming back from a first-period deficit with three goals in each of the second and third frames for a 7-3 decision over Victoria V's. Losers played without coach Dick Irving and defenseman Ray Fogg, both on the suspended list.

FIRST IN VICTORIA

In stretching their lead to five-and-a-half games over Merchants, the Clippers broke a four-game winless skein against the defending champions here, although for most of the contest it looked like their previous form would prevail. Holding five wins against Merchants at Nanaimo, Clippers haven't been as fortunate at Memorial Arena where they have played to 3-3 and 2-2 draws, and have dropped 5-0 and 4-2 decisions.

Although it was poor spectator hockey in the first two periods, the estimated 1,400 fans—smallest crowd of the season—were treated to an exciting third frame as the tempo picked up and the clubs started to skate.

In the slow-moving first two periods, which saw frequent holding and much loose play by both sides, Merchants had the edge although they were blanked in the opening session and could count only once in the middle period.

OUTLUCKED

But after Arnold Elliott, who was playing his first game with Merchants this season after a brief stint with the V's, and Toby Brown had hit the post, the Clippers struck for two quick goals by Bud Dumont and Shadow Yesowich to take the lead. Elliot, a standout, got one back when his bullet drive, partially stopped by goalie Walt Davis, looped over the youthful netminder's pads.

Nanaimo, taking advantage of every break, struck back with just over two minutes remaining when Don Plensky drilled home Yesowich's perfect pass-out to provide the winner.

NAVY SHORT, TOO

Navy were missing goalie Norm Jones, defensemen Roy Bird and Gus McCarthy, and forwards Roy Johnson and Johnny Neves through the draft but got good performances out of the personnel they had. Al Millin replaced Jones in goal and the club played with only three defensemen but Orville Coulter and Paul Wannamaker sparked the attack, each with three-point efforts.

BY ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers absorbed a 3-1 licking at the hands of Detroit Red Wings in a National Hockey League game Wednesday night, but coach Muzz Patrick, making his debut in the big town, wasn't discouraged.

"They told me the Red Wings are the best in the league," he said after the game, "and they sure looked it tonight."

But he obviously was pleased with the Rangers who fought on almost even terms with the Wings until Gordie Howe got a goal with only 30 seconds to go and goalie Johnny Bower on the bench.

"I expect to use the same system Frank Boucher who quit as coach to devote his time to executive duties used with good results recently," Patrick said.

"I am going to concentrate on my defensemen. Position play is what I'm going to stress instead of going for the puck. Our only interest is getting into the playoffs.

"I intend to use Camille Henry only sparingly," he said. "We are not interested in whether he wins the 'rookie of the year' award. Therefore, he will be on the ice only during power plays."

NOT AGAIN

How about Patrick. Would he think of playing again?

"I certainly don't intend to play," he answered. "They laughed me out of the Western League when I was with Vancouver. They're not going to do the same here."

Patrick said he expects to see Doug Bentley, Max's 36-year-old brother, next week in New York.

"I got a look at him recently in Saskatoon of the Western League," Muzz reported. "He was skating well and says he is eager to join the Rangers."

Speaking of Ivan "The Terrible" Irwin, who already has won over the Madison Square Garden crowds with his bruising play, Patrick said:

"He is a good, solid defenseman. I saw him with Victoria in the Western League and he was good then. He is going to be a great hockey player in a few years."

Gordie Howe paced the Wings to their triumph by scoring their first goal and the clincher into an open net after Earl Reibel had broken a 1-1 tie halfway through the third period. The two scoring shots gave Howe a three-point lead over Maurice Richard in the individual scoring race.

One of the features of the game was a rousing scrap between Glen Sonmor, Ranger rookie, and Detroit's Marty Pavelich which livened things up for the rather smallish crowd of 9,823.

Meanwhile, Toronto's persistent Maple Leafs edged within three points of the second-place Canadiens by squeezing past Chicago, 2-1, before 12,364 Toronto fans.

Last night's score: Saskatoon 2 at Edmonton 3.

Next game: Tonight—Vancouver at Edmonton.

Edmonton Flyers, who have taken over from Saskatoon Quakers as the hottest thing in the Western League, last night moved within two points of the fourth-place Saskatchewan club by scoring a 3-2 win before 3,800 Edmonton fans.

It was the sixth straight victory for the Flyers, who now have won 12 and tied two of their 17 games since December 2 to climb from last place to a spot only 10 points out of the league lead.

JINXED ON ROAD

And it was the second straight setback for the Quakers and their fourth in their last six games. Not doing too well away from home, the Saskatoon club has lost its last five games on the road and a total of 14 for the season.

Rookie Don Poile was the Edmonton star, scoring his 17th and 18th goals of the season to give his club a 2-0 lead before the third minute of the third period.

The Quakers, outplayed in the first two periods, then came to life as their rookie line clicked for two goals in 78 seconds before the final period was in its fourth minute. Vic Howe got the first on a three-way play with linemates Aggie Kukolowicz and Chuck Holdaway. Just over a minute later, Holdaway tied it up with Kukolowicz and playing-coach Doug Bentley helping.

ANDERSON ENDS TIE

With little over two minutes left, defenseman Bill Folk and centre Frank Kubasek carried deep into Saskatoon territory. A pass found Jim Anderson in the right spot and the speedy winger slapped his 18th goal into the nets for the tie-breaker.

Goes to Phils

Murry Dickson

Last Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher to win 20 games in one season, Murray Dickson yesterday went to Philadelphia Phillies in exchange for infielder J. Lohrke, pitcher Andy Hansen and $80,000 in cash. Deal was announced by Pirate general manager Branch Rickey, who brought the 37-year-old right-hander to majors with St. Louis Cardinals in 1939.

Edmonton's Enio Selisizzi added a point to his Western Hockey League scoring lead last night by picking up an assist against Saskatoon. The Flyers' wing star now has 51 points, five more than Gordie Fashoway of the New Westminster Royals, who leads in goals scored with 30.

Bobby Love, veteran New Westminster centre, is third with 45 points while Victoria's Ed Dorohoy and Calgary's often-injured Sid Finney are in a fourth-place tie with 44 points.

Edmonton playing-coach Bud Poile leads in assists with 31, one more scoring pass than made by Dorohoy and Alex Kaleta. A total of 19 players have scored 35 or more points. They are:

Olympic Official Confident Games Switch Improbable

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—It would cost the International Olympic Committee about $4,500,000 to take the 1956 Olympic Games from Melbourne at this late date, a high Olympic official has announced.

"I don't see how they could afford it but certainly somebody would have to pay," added a member of the Melbourne organizing committee who asked not to be identified.

The IOC executive committee meets in Lausanne, Switzerland, January 16-17 to consider a proposal that the games be shifted to another site because of Australia's quarantine law which threatens to strike equestrian events from the program.

NEW AGITATION

There is a new agitation to remove the games from Melbourne because of an Olympic law which says all Olympic events must be held at the same site.

"We are certain we are in no danger of losing the games now," the official added, "but just in case we were, it might be interesting to ponder who would foot the bill for the expenses already incurred.

"This would amount to around £2,000,000 or approximately $4,500,000 for works for which we have already contracted. The IOC gave us the go-ahead sign at Mexico City and certainly can't renege now."

Blackpool XI Again Tied In Cup Replay

LONDON (UP)—Heavy rain and water-logged fields prevailed Wednesday for most of six Football Association Cup third-round replays which saw the elimination of all but one of the non-league clubs.

Blackpool, the cup holders, after 120 minutes' play, including 30 minutes extra time, was again held to a tie by Luton, thus necessitating another replay.

The Fulham-Grimsby replay was abandoned without a goal being scored when continuous rain washed out the field markings, while Tottenham slithered in mud and pools of water to a 1-0 win over Leeds.

Norwich scored a 3-0 win over non-league Hastings, but the other non-leaguer, Wigan, put up a terrific fight before being beaten, 3-2, by the powerful first division club of Newcastle.

There was only one big upset in a local derby, when Sheffield scored a 3-2 win on the ground of its local rivals, Sheffield United, who had a one-goal lead at half time.

Norwich C. 3, Hastings 0.
Sheffield U. 2, Sheffield W. 3.
Tottenham H. 1, Leeds U. 0.
Wigan A. 2, Newcastle U. 3.
Fulham 0, Grimsby T. 0 (game abandoned at half-time because of the water-logged state of the ground. Replayed next Monday).
Luton T. 0, Blackpool 0.

Feedmen Still Unbeaten; Rally To Down Sooke

Howie Tooby's crack Scott & Peden junior boys' basketball club maintained its unbeaten streak at Victoria High School gym last night by overcoming a half-time deficit to score a 53-46 victory over Sooke senior "C" men in the feature game of a three-game card.

Trailing, 23-20, at the end of two quarters, the Feedmen outscored their opponents 15-8 in the third frame as Len Anderson came through with 10 of his 15 points and held a slight edge in the final period. The winners built up a 13-5 lead in the first quarter but Sooke came back strong in the second session, outscoring Scott & Peden by 11 points.

Anderson, who got all of his points in the last half, paced all scorers, and teammate Al Davies was next with 13 points. Lou McCorkall topped the losers with 12 points, eight of them in the final quarter in a vain attempt to pull out a victory for his club.

Tillicums' powerful midget boys racked up a 26-22 victory over St. Louis College in the opener with Wes Wescott scoring 11 points for the winners. In the other preliminary contest, St. Louis College bantams romped to a 55-31 decision over Brentwood.

Canadiens' Boss Gets a Problem

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League (centre) wants to know what Montreal Canadiens are going to do about attack on him by Maurice (Rocket) Richard. The star winger bitterly criticized Campbell in article in Montreal weekly newspaper, accusing him of being "partial" towards Montreal's opponents and discriminating against French-Canadian players. Campbell, asking Frank Selke (left) to censure Rocket, meets here with Canadiens' general manager and Kenny Reardon, also of Canadiens. Decision is expected this week.

Winter Trade Talk Has Stars Guessing

BY STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UP) — It's a winter of uncertainty for several established major leaguers whose names keep popping up in baseball trade rumors.

Among the top hands frequently listed as trade bait are Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers, Gus Zernial of the Athletics, Bobby Thomson of the Giants and Larry Doby of the Indians.

Baltimore admitted offering Vic Gertz and Clint Courtney in a frantic effort to engineer a swap that might strengthen the Orioles.

MAY MOVE AGAIN

The names of Warren Hacker and Bob Rush of the Cubs have been kicked around while two players who have been traded once already—Sid Gordon and Eddie Robinson—may move again before the 1954 campaign opens.

Willie Jones of the Phillies and Gerry Staley of the Cardinals also have been mentioned as candidates for a swap in uniforms.

An "unwritten law" normally prevents big trades between the neighboring Dodgers and Giants, who seem to have reached a mutual agreement that it wouldn't be healthy to be stung by each other. However, rumor persists that Jackie Robinson might go from Brooklyn to the Polo Grounds in the only type of trade Robinson would endorse personally.

Jackie repeatedly has said he'll quit the game if he is traded to any club outside of New York where he has numerous interests off the diamond.

ZERNIAL ON SPOT

Zernial is on a spot formerly occupied by Ferris Fain when Fain was the big bait of the Athletics. Every time his phone rang during the off season Ferris figured it was news he had been traded and finally it came with a shift to the White Sox. Now homer-hitting Zernial is the man on the market—to be sold only for the right price.

Thomson, who has led the Giants in home runs for five straight years and in 1950 produced the fabled playoff payoff against Brooklyn, has been on and off the trade list ever since the season ended. He plays either outfield or third base, possesses speed, power and a right good name.

TURNED IT DOWN'

Doby has been the subject of several rumors and at least one outright trade rejection. The Orioles offered the Indians to swap 'em straight—Vic Wertz for Doby—but general manager Hank Greenberg of Cleveland turned it down. The Indians, reportedly on the trail of catcher Clint Courtney for a couple of years, also rejected a Courtney deal—according to the Orioles.

When Sid Gordon was traded by Milwaukee to Pittsburgh in a multi-player deal, reports had Sid headed for Brooklyn, his home town. And no sooner had Eddie Robinson been obtained by the Yankees from the A's than rumors began that he'd move on in a further deal to strengthen the potent world champs. So far no more smoke on those.

The Giants, out to improve their pitching, were reported dickering earlier with the Cubs for either Rush or Hacker but apparently the price was too high.

These are a few of the big ones who have been involved in enough trade talk to make them wonder just what their baseball address will be in 1954.

EZZARD CHARLES

Charles Boosts Claim; Scores KO in Second

CHICAGO (UP) — Ezzard Charles, a former heavyweight champion with a new power punch, knocked out Bob Satterfield with a left hook to the jaw in the second round Wednesday night to strengthen his claim as champion Rocky Marciano's leading challenger.

Charles, who had lost two of his last three fights, appeared close to losing another in the first round.

Weighing 189 to Satterfield's 180, he gave ground to the two-fisted attack of the Chicago light heavyweight, who had won his last four battles by knockouts.

CONNECTED WITH LEFT

But, in the second round Charles finished the brawl in a hurry. He came, out quickly, dodged Satterfield's lead and connected to the head with a left which set Satterfield back on his heels.

Then, as the two headed toward a melee in mid-ring, Charles landed a soft right to the head, and as Satterfield sagged back, the ex-titleholder from Cincinnati slammed home a hard left hook which put Satterfield on the canvas for good.

Satterfield stayed flat on his back without moving until referee Rank Gilmer signalled the count of eight. Then his head wobbled, but he had no chance to arise before the ten count.

Time of the knockout was an even one minute.

ANOTHER TITLE SHOT

The victory apparently cinched another title shot for Charles, who defeated Jersey Joe Walcott here to win the heavyweight championship.

Charles later lost the crown to Walcott in the third of their four bouts, while Marciano captured the title from Jersey Joe a year ago.

Ezzard went into action tonight billed as a scrapper with a new style: a two-fisted attack which promised a knockout possibility at every second. But in Satterfield he faced the same type of battler, although rated as a glass-jawed pugilist.

Charles was cautious in the first round and gave Satterfield little chance to connect with his vaunted right hooks. Satterfield was wide with two of these roundhouse swings, but he came in and landed with a couple of lighter efforts to make Charles cover up.

SHARPER PUNCHES

Still Charles was able to weather the attack and, as the round finished, his sharper punching had Satterfield covering up.

The second round had little action. Satterfield was fighting from a crouch, but he couldn't break through Charles' defense and once Charles had a chance to connect, he wasted no time.

Each of the fighters received $4,000 for their appearance on the national television network. Charles, in addition, was to get 35 per cent of the net gate and Satterfield 20 per cent.

The bout attracted a crowd estimated at 5,000 with a probable net gate of $12,500.

It was Charles' second straight kayo win. In his last appearance he finished Coley Wallace in 10 rounds after he had lost decisions to Nino Valdes and Harold Johnson.

Official opening of an artificial ice arena, to which Rossland citizens contributed almost $17,000 plus labor, is expected to take place early next month.

Portable Outdoor Ice Rinks Banish Gloom for Hockey-Playing Youngsters

BY JIM BASTABLE

TORONTO (CP) — Cliff Meadows looked out of his office window in central Toronto on a mild winter day, saw some youngsters glumly toting hockey skates and sticks, and decided to do something about it. That's when the outdoor artificial ice rink was born into community life.

"Those kids looked unhappy," Meadows said in an interview. "They had just left one of the city's natural ice rinks, which was a puddle of water. That's when I determined to do something for them."

He has. In four years Meadows, a 62-year-old consulting engineer, has supplied 15 of the 35 or so outdoor artificial rinks in the United States and Canada. Seven are located in the Toronto area.

PLANNED SYSTEM

"The outdoor artificial rink isn't new," Meadows said. "But it is the first time they have been used in a planned system in the community."

What does this mean to the youngsters who some day may be headliners in big-time hockey?

"They've saved the hockey lives of many children," says Norm Ware of Toronto, general-secretary of the Catholic Youth Organization, which operates 75 teams in the city. "I'm sold on them."

For as little as $87,000 cities and municipalities can invest in one of Meadows' rinks and forget about the weather. It's a sure thing, civic officials added, even with the mercury hitting as high as 70 degrees.

PROVED WORTH

"It's already proved its worth," says Oscar Pearson, Toronto deputy parks commissioner. "They're cheap when you consider the benefit kids and hockey clubs as a whole get out of them."

Meadows, who has designed sport centres and arenas in various parts of Ontario, has plenty of orders for his rinks, costing between $87,000 and $125,000. Even places which get cold winters—such as Regina, Fort William, Sioux Lookout, Ont.—are looking into the project. He has inquiries from Milwaukee and Chicago. Civic officials in London, England, and New Zealand have shown interest.

"They are going all the time," said Appleton. "We have teams on the waiting list. But we make sure that pleasure skaters get plenty of opportunity to use them."

LUXURY MODEL

Meadows started his plans on the outdoor rinks after he built Riverdale Terrace, a $500,000 venture, for private interests. The terrace is enclosed, has a snackbar and other frills, and even the bare rink cost $125,000.

"They come cheaper than that, though," Meadows said. "Some communities just can't afford the bigger rinks. The smaller rinks do a wonderful job, too."

Meadows has also designed a space and money-saving "roll-up" rink. This consists chiefly of light, strong plastic pipes and a minimum of freezing equipment. It can be set up for field used for football or tennis, taken down in a day and the rink was born into community life.

If a community decides to build a group of portable rinks, a booster freezer can be supplied to cut down the freezing equipment of each rink.

Mobile the booster goes from rink to rink for the initial freezing in the fall and supplies extra freezing power for unusually warm weather. The rinks need only equipment to maintain the ice once it's frozen.

The permanent and portable rinks are built along the same lines. Thousands of feet of plastic pipes, able to stand the weight of ice and pressure of the refrigeration solution they carry, are under the cement slabs.

Golf--- Here's How

BY SAM SNEAD

You've seen golfers who violate the proved fundamentals of the swing and still score well. How come you ask. Such a player must compensate somewhere else in his swing for the bad form he practices. And he can never play the game he is capable of. Today, let's check on the correct golf grip. The club is held diagonally across the palm of the left hand in the loop of the index finger. The "V" formed by the thumb and index finger points over the right shoulder. Now place your right hand over your left, interlocking the little finger of the right hand between the index and second finger of the left hand. The "V" formed by your thumb and index finger of your right hand also points over your right shoulder. The shaft nestles in the loop formed by your hooved right finger and the tip of your right finger is in contact with your right thumb. With this grip you're set to apply your maximum effortless power.

Early Favorites Named For Top British Races

BY STERLING SLAPPEY

LONDON (AP) — The Grand National and the Derby, two races where Britons turn out nearly a million strong, forget their troubles and bet a few bob—will be raced March 27 and June 2.

Hottest early favorites for the Grand National, far and away the world's toughest steeple chase, are Little Yid, Irish Lizard and Early Mist, the 1953 winner.

Others with an air of class who can last the four-mile, 856-yard course at Aintree with its 32 jumps are Ordinance, M'As-Tu-Vu, Glen Fire and Mont Tremblant.

M'As-Tu-Vu, owned by Queen Mother Elizabeth, picks up sentimental backing on that score. Mont Tremblant is rated one of the finest jumpers in Europe but probably will be asked to carry a heavy burden.

A field of between 30 and 45 jumpers is expected and a turnout of about 350,000 spectators. The ancient course, just north of Liverpool, is jammed with a crowd that size almost every year.

DERBY FAVORITES

Last June, 600,000 covered the infield and lined the outside rail 10 deep to see the Derby, run at Epsom Downs, south of London. Landau, Infatuation, Royal Challenger and Darius are among the better-liked three-year-olds eligible for the mile and a half Derby. Landau runs under the Queen's colors.

Irish Sweepstakes annually are based on the Grand National and the Derby.

Just a cut below the two big races in prestige and interest is the St. Leger, run annually at Doncaster, to the north in Yorkshire. Although the date has not been determined officially, Wednesday, September 8, probably will be the day.

Two other classic races, the 2,000 Guineas and the 1,000 Guineas, will be run at Newmarket, Wednesday, April 28, and Friday, April 30.

Other big racing dates in close:

Lincolnshire Handicap at Lincoln, March 24; the Oaks for fillies at Epsom, June 4; King George and Queen Elizabeth Stakes at Ascot Heath, July 31; Goodwood Stewards' Cup at Goodwood, July 27; the Cesarewitch at Newmarket, October 16, and the Cambridgeshire at Newmarket, October 27. The date for Manchester November Handicap has not been set.

Remember When:

Baseball commissioner K. M. Landis 14 years ago today declared five major leaguers and 88 minor baseball players free agents, as a result of an investigation of the farm operations of Detroit Tigers. The American League club lost an estimated $500,000 worth of player material by the decision.

Peterborough Wants More From Playoffs

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Trailermen, Canadian senior lacrosse champions, have asked the Ontario Lacrosse Association to appeal to the national governing body for a bigger share in last year's gate receipts of the Canadian finals.

The Trailermen are asking for $2,000 instead of the $500 offered by the Canadian Lacrosse Association. Executives of the Peterborough team said that the offer wasn't big enough to compensate for the loss suffered when the Trailermen traveled west for the finals against Victoria Shamrocks last year. The Trailermen have also complained that the defeated Shamrocks received more than the Peterborough team got.

Great Jazz of '30s Revived at Concert

BY RAY BAINES

Great jazz which helped hungry citizens swing through the 30s was faithfully reproduced by a talented local septet Tuesday night.

The New Victoria Jazz Society's all-Benny Goodman night was more than just a musical treat, it was a trip back to days when it did a lot for progress, it just swung.

TIMELESS PATTERN

But it wasn't all nostaglia. The lads and lasses who thrive on a diet of Brubeck and Tristan cocked an interested ear, too. The fine old rhythm and chord patterns are timeless.

There were things like "Poor Butterfly" of 1930 vintage, the ever-present "Sunny Side" and, of course, "Body and Soul." George Foxcroft's wonderful vibraphone solo on this standard, incidentally, was something to hear.

Bill Heybrook accounted himself very well on the clarinet in the role of Goodman and the others rallied around skillfully with great feeling for a style which predates most of them.

Chinchillas Go on Display At Nanaimo on Saturday

NANAIMO — The cutest and friendliest little animal in the Canadian fur industry will make its annual appearance in Nanaimo Saturday.

The event marks the yearly show of the Vancouver Island branch of the National Chinchilla Breeders of Canada, and ranchers from every part of the Island are expected to enter animals in the show.

The show will be held at the Nanaimo Legion Hall opening at 9 a.m. A banquet will follow in the Plaza Hotel at 6 p.m.

A. P. Horne of Courtenay, well-known chinchilla breeder, is show chairman. Judges include Norman Boyd of Vancouver and John E. Donahue of Santa Marie, California.

A polished stone ax head found in County Carlow, Ireland, is believed to date from 2,500 BC.

Pickles Urges No Action on Road

SAANICHTON — In a six-point recommendation to Central Saanich council, Reeve Sidney Pickles urged that no action be taken in connection with the establishment of Tunstead Road.

Councillor P. F. Warren and a number of other residents in the Martindale Road area have no other access to their property than this road.

Saanich council several years ago, and since secession, Central Saanich council have been urged to accept the road.

Reeve Pickles suggested in his report on the situation that no evidence had been forthcoming that the road had any time been accepted by Saanich as is contended by residents of the area.

The recommendations from the reeve were mailed to the council while he is on holiday in California.

Four other recommendations included the appointment of Councillor Harold Andrew as acting reeve, extensive ditching program, the establishment of a special reserve fund for replacement of equipment, and the storing of all municipal trucks within the municipal garage.

No action will be taken by council until the reeve returns next month.

Norman Foster Association Treasurer

Captain Norman Foster was elected treasurer of the Greater Victoria celebrations association for the eighth consecutive year Tuesday night in the city hall.

Other officers elected were Joseph Wright, vice-president; M. Frank Hunter, chairman; and Mrs. Helen Sinclair, secretary.

The finance committee elected is composed of Alderman Arthur Dowell and G. I. Edgelow, representing Victoria; Councillor J. E. Carey, Esquimalt; Councillor George Murdoch, Oak Bay; Councillor R. H. Wooten, of Saanich.

DIRECTORS

Members voted to the board directors were Milton Sharp, Harry Adams, George de Beck, Dr. Ray McDonald, R. D. MacLachlan, and Mrs. T. R. Kelly.

The Bayeaux tapestry, nearly 900 years old, is 230 feet long and depicts 76 scenes of the conquest of England—by the Normans, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Wall Street Shakes Off The Blues

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks advanced on increased volume with the general average touching a new high since Dec. [illegible]

Strength in rails and oils featured. Special issues moved higher and wide gains appeared in individual issues of leading groups, notably the steels.

It was the second attempt so far this year to negotiate the difficult 285 level in the industrial average. The first one failed a few days ago. Then followed four days of decline which wiped out the year's gains. The market Wednesday was the second rise in a row and it practically restored all of the recent losses.

Buying returned to the financial community when the recent sell-off failed to generate liquidation. Wall Street experts said confidence would return in greater amounts when the general public finds that the business adjustment is much less severe than most of them had anticipated.

Along with other things and in the absence of anything in the news, the market circulated an astrologer's findings that this is the time the stars are right for investing in the market.

Toronto Gets Busy

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed at the close one of the most active sessions in months.

Industrials and uraniums and Bathurst area base metals led the rise followed by base metals. Golds and western oils were lower. Motors although lightly traded led industrials as Ford and General Motors added $2.25 and $1.50 respectively. Brown and Minnesota and Ontario were strong in papers.

Uraniums and Bathurst area base metals were ahead with Lorado adding 17 cents in a turnover of more than 300,000 shares. Parbec traded 535,000 shares with a gain of 3½ cents.

Western oils closed lower. Canadian Collieries finished with a 10-cent gain after being up 15 cents at one time. Losses ranged to 20 and 25 cents by Griet Home and several others.

Golds were mixed. Seniors slipped despite a 75-cent gain by Bazoo Consolidated Howey in prospects was up four cents.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (Reuters) — Stock markets displayed firmness. Foreign bonds were again the most prominent. German moved five points higher. Federal [illegible] on profit taking then regained to close around best. The potash loans rose around 2½ points.

Japanese and Chinese issues made fractional headway.

Gilt-edged continued to make steady improvements and industrials were good under the lead of textiles and engineerings.

Kaffir had small gains. Elsewhere in mines coppers and diamonds were strongly firm.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain prices showed a somewhat easier tone in very quiet trading today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat for Monday included South Africa 357,000 bushels, Belgium 200,000 and the United Kingdom 165,000.

Prices for the top grades of Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were down one-half cent with the exception of the Class Two durums which were unchanged.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Christmas seal sales will be used to buy Vancouver a new $23,000 mobile chest x-ray unit, it was announced here Wednesday by the British Columbia Tuberculosis Society. The unit will be delivered in about three weeks.

Production Assured

Canadian Devonian Pete has been assured of production of light crude oil from its extension well in the Roselea Field in Manitoba. In a four-hour swab test conducted in the well Sunday, crews established an initial production rate of twenty barrels an hour. The test was carried out in 64 ft. of open hole below 1,965, 30 feet of which is believed to be actual pay zone.

Business Dips on Vancouver Exchange

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Investors in British Columbia stocks did not fare too well in 1953 and the annual figures of trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange show that the volume of business also lowered considerably from 1952.

The big drop in number of shares and share value was in the oil section. In 1952 the exchange traded 16,491,629 oil shares. In 1953 the total sank to 7,929,550 — or rather less than half.

The value of oil shares traded was worse — only one third of the 1952 total of $21,128,176.

Because a number of Vancouver listed mining companies were in the uranium exploration business, the number of mining stocks traded was not notably lower, only some 300,000 out of 19,000,000, but there were big drops — not tabulated by the Vancouver Exchange — in the many B.C. companies in the base metal and gold mining fields.

Several stocks during the year dropped to a twentieth of their 1952 value.

As might be expected with the mines and oils out of favor interest turned to industrial and banking stocks.

The industrial total of shares traded rose from 660,843 in 1952 to 860,761 in 1953 while the dollar value of these shares was up to $6,520,590 from the previous year's $4,189,341.

Much of the turnover was due to the change of ownership of Canadian Western Lumber which is now a subsidiary of Crown Zellerbach. Before the deal was completed the shares of Canadian Western Lumber [illegible] Stock Exchange.

NEW BREWERY BONDS

A new issue of $15,000,000 4¾ per cent sinking fund debentures is announced by Canadian Breweries.

The bonds will become due on January 15, 1979 and they will be used to pay off a bank debt of $1,185,000 and for expansion of brewing facilities of subsidiaries in Canada and the United States, totaling $6,000,000.

An interesting feature of the new issue is that payments as to interest or principal may be paid at the choice of the holder in Canadian or United States funds. With the possibility of further fluctuation in the price of the two funds investors will find this attractive.

INSURANCE MEN MEET

Fifty fieldmen and executives of the Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies Pacific Northwest department will meet January 17 to 20 at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel for their first [illegible] conference of the Pacific Northwest Production personnel from Seattle, Portland, Spokane, Vancouver, Calgary and Edmonton will be present.

NO WATER; NO OIL

Although the connection between [illegible] and the oil industry may have no apparent link the drought of last fall had a serious effect on the secondary oil recovery projects in areas of the Middle West.

Maxwell Goldhar, president of Sapphire Petroleums of Toronto, says that many oil companies with wells in Illinois, Indiana and Oklahoma had been hit as hard as farmers by the drought. The parched lakes, streams and rivers had affected and sometimes stopped the secondary production of oil where wells use the water flooding method.

By this method millions of gallons of water are pumped around the abandoned wells to create new pressures.

In Southern Illinois, Sapphire's recovery projects were suspended through lack of water for two months. [illegible] the pressure and the company's operations are yielding only 1,500 barrels a month instead of the 15,000 barrels that could have been expected with a normal flow of water.

J. B. Redpath Joins Dome

TORONTO (CP) — James B. Redpath of Val d'Or, Que., general manager of Sigma Mines Quebec Ltd. and president of the Quebec Metal Mining Association, has been appointed executive vice-president of Dome Mines Ltd., succeeding the late James G. McCrea.

He also becomes president of Dome Exploration Canada Ltd., and of Mindamar Metals Corporation Ltd., and vice-president of Sigma Mines and Campbell Red Lake Mines Ltd.

New York Oil Executives Examine Pembina Field

EDMONTON (CP) — Arrival here of New York executives of Socony Vacuum Oil Co. has stirred new interest of prospect of major developments soon in the recently discovered Pembina oil sector, 60 miles southwest of here.

[illegible] operations [illegible] expansion are J. [illegible] and F. B. Pratt of New York and W. W. [illegible]

Discovery of oil at Pembina was hailed as one of the industry's [illegible] in Alberta. Six producing wells there get high quality oil from the Cardium sandstone at a depth of approximately 5,000 feet. Some of the wells are miles apart, indicating plenty of room for development.

Provincial government officials report that Socony Vacuum holds about 100,000 acres in the Pembina region under lease or permit.

B.C. Government Approves Bonds

The cabinet Tuesday approved Public Utilities Commission orders authorizing the issue of $26,000,000 of utility debentures.

The two issues are a $15,000,000 issue of 4¼ per cent first mortgage bonds by the B.C. Electric Co. and an $11,000,000 issue of 4¼ per cent general mortgage bonds by the B.C. Electric Railway Co.

The cabinet also approved issue of $1,500,000 in bonds by the Greater Victoria Water District.

Commission Asked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Urgent call for a Forestry Commission to control B.C.'s multi-million dollar lumber industry was issued Wednesday as 700 Truck Logger Association delegates met in Vancouver to study the economic ills brought on by rising costs and dwindling markets.

President D. M. MacKenzie said a commission "with funds on which they could rely for years in advance is the only way in which our forests can be managed on a long-range basis."

He said the present forest management plan was theoretical and out-dated.

Features in Oils

VANCOUVER — Oils provided some of the brighter features in a session in which the 100,000 mark was just topped.

Canadian Collieries, Mercury Pete, Midwest Gas, Royal Canadian and United Oils advanced. Lower were Federated and Yankee Princess.

In mines Spud Valley was active at 3½ cents while Pacific Eastern advanced to 30 cents. Other mines [illegible] lower.

B.C. Power and B.C. Telephone advanced in industrials. [illegible] Capital Estate changed hands freely at $26.

New High in Ford

MONTREAL (CP) — The stock market closed on a higher note in moderate stock market trading.

New highs were established by Ford, up two at 69, Banque Canadienne Nationale ¼ at 27½ and Dow Brewery ¾ at 20½. Sherwin Williams gained one at 28½ while Imperial Oil and Royalite each moved up ½ to 29½ and 12½ respectively. Noranda increased one point and Asbestos Corporation ¾ at [illegible]

Mining prices edged forward. Steep Rock and Canadian Collieries [illegible] gained [illegible]

In Western oils Anglo Consolidated, Cal-Iasun, Las[illegible] Home and Federated Petroleums were pennies easier.

Aluminium Ltd. Elects Directors

MONTREAL (CP) — Election of H. H. Richardson and Dana T. Bartholomew to the board of directors of Aluminium Ltd. and their appointment as vice-presidents of the company was announced Wednesday.

The announcement, following a directors' meeting, said the board accepted the resignations of Dr. Earl Blough and George O. Morgan, both retiring after long association with the company.

Imperial Rebuilds Halifax Refinery

HALIFAX (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. has announced a $30,000,000 rebuilding of its oil refinery at Imperoyal, across the harbor from Halifax.

Completion of the project in the summer of 1956 will make it the third largest refinery in Canada, surpassed only by those at Montreal and Sarnia.

The new plant will have a capacity of 41,625 barrels a day, compared to the present 22,000. It will serve the Maritime provinces and Newfoundland with products made from crude oil brought in by tanker from Venezuela.

Weather Gremlins Fail Prophet, Rains Come—and So Does Beard

First-day stubble on the face of CJVI's fearless weather prophet Tippy O'Neil was an itchy reminder last night that the rains came.

Even yesterday's Scotch mist was sufficient to lose Mr. O'Neil his bet against the elements. After 17 rainless hours he was still short of the 24 hours of sunshine he said Victoria wouldn't see before there was rain.

CALCULATIONS BIT AWRY

[illegible] last night scratching his tickering chin. "My calculations were awry, and I'm very dejected."

Aware of the maxim that everyone talks about the weather but no one does anything about it, the Tippy's sunrise [illegible] announcer promised his listeners early last week that there would be 24 hours of sunshine unbroken by rain.

Almost miraculously the following morning the sun rose warmly over the hills. It shone 5.6 hours that day, 7.8 hours the following day and about four hours the day after that.

GREMLINS GET ON JOB

But yesterday the impish weather gremlins turned on the tap and Mr. O'Neil looked dejectedly out of his window and put away his razor.

[illegible] does have 24 hours of sunshine unbroken by rain the unhappy announcer may greet his morning listeners for some time with whisker-muffled syllables.

His original prediction he says was done after careful study without use of astrology, almanacs, rheumy knees, Indian [illegible] meteorological equipment.

Six Fined Total of $225 On Careless Driving Counts

Six persons were fined for careless driving in city police court yesterday.

[illegible] pleaded guilty and one was [illegible] total of $225 in fines.

Jacob W. Basslinger, RCN, pleaded guilty to careless driving [illegible] car was in collision with the rear of another parked near Robert Street.

Basslinger told the court he had been talking to a passenger in the front seat and didn't see the parked car until it was too late [illegible].

[illegible] careless driving [illegible] and Quadra after going through a red light because he was [illegible] people in the car, was [illegible] of Totem Theatre.

[illegible] RCN, was charged after his car failed to make a corner at Pendergast [illegible] with another.

[illegible] turned over on [illegible] December 21 [illegible] Toronto, was charged and pleaded guilty.

[illegible] who is leaving for New Zealand Monday [illegible] plea from guilty to not guilty on a careless driving charge and was fined $25.

[illegible] could be adjourned until the end of October when [illegible] would be returning but Magistrate H. C. Hall said the case should be heard before Monday.

"In that case I think I'll plead guilty now," Wilkes said.

"We don't take pleas under [illegible]" [illegible] and the fine was set at $35.

The only not guilty plea was entered by Robert W. Paterson.

Paterson was charged after his car skidded into the rear of another on Douglas in the 3000 block on the night of December 5.

He failed to remain at the scene and was chased by three other drivers along Douglas to Tolmie, up Tolmie to Oak where he stopped.

G. W. Lapp, 3350 Quadra, one of the pursuing drivers, told the court when he confronted Paterson with the facts of the accident he denied it.

"He told me it was none of my business anyway but agreed to return to the scene," Lapp said.

W. T. Gale, 828 Reed, who also chased Paterson, told the court the distance chased but [illegible] had a good look [illegible] could not identify him in court.

In his own defense, Paterson said he remembered his car [illegible] until he arrived at Oak Street.

"I could hear a scraping noise on my car and then I knew I had been in an accident," he said.

He said he didn't know why he didn't stop and could give no explanation for "not remembering" the period between the impact and the place he pulled up.

"Your explanation I consider to be completely absurd," Magistrate H. C. Hall said. "I find you guilty as charged and fine you $[illegible]."

Work of Island's Seagoing Minister, Rev. Percy Wills, Featured in Life

Vancouver Island's [illegible] Rev. Percy Wills [illegible] the missionary ship Messenger III are subjects of a feature in this week's edition of Life magazine.

The article is written by photographer George Silk who made a month trip with the [illegible] who brave the [illegible] of the Pacific off Vancouver Island to bring God's friendship and service to isolated residents."

HEART WARMING

According to Silk who wrote [illegible]

The [illegible] portrayed by Silk was a special one to bring the [illegible] message to the [illegible] folk.

During the voyage he tells how the missionaries decorated Christmas trees, dedicated a baby, played Christmas carols for a group of 75 Indian adults and children and took part in a community sing.

FINAL TRIP

He writes, "At all stops the Reverend Percy Wills, who is 55 years old, had to announce a house"

[illegible] said that this would be his last trip because he is [illegible] and must restrict himself to administrative work.

"Each farewell was a tearful one for it was Wills who started the sea missionary service on Vancouver Island's West Coast 20 years ago using a canoe and the settlers have come to depend on him not only for spiritual advice but for guidance in practical affairs ranging from business to how to build a house."

Bridge Linking Islands May Exceed $40,000

SIDNEY — A bridge [illegible] North and South Pender [illegible] $40,000 [illegible] Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi.

Mrs. T. R. would like to know how she can stop her cats from sharpening their claws on the furniture?

A. My dear lady, I have the same trouble with my cats. About the only thing you can do is get a substitute for them such as a small tree trunk or a catnip [illegible] post [illegible]. They are not sharpening their claws but are merely exercising them. Cats do not have to sharpen their claws, they stay as sharp as needles with [illegible].

Where on Earth
Are The Strangest
Marriage Ceremonies?
by TED ATWOOD

The world over, the holy state of matrimony has given rise to almost as many unusual customs as it has jokes.

In Greenland the age old practice of marriage by capture is still in wide use. The man selects a mate, then clubs her over the head and, seizing her by the hair or dress, calmly drags her off with him!

In Russia, although the man is still considered lord and master, women are gradually gaining equality. Part of the Russian wedding proceedings consists of the bride's removing her husband's boots to show her subjection to him. But immediately afterward one rounds into him on the boot with one of them to remind him that she's every bit as good as he is!

Turkey has since its own unique marriage custom. At an appointed moment in the Turkish wedding ceremony the officiating authority knocks the heads of the bride and groom together so they look in a mirror and see their images equal.

In [illegible] unusual ceremonies go on this [illegible] takes place in far off Asia Minor. Here, the Kurds take no chances. They seem to marry [illegible] over the Asia Minor equivalent of our divorce court may be [illegible] beats his wives he stands in running water, a practice that [illegible] of the marriage [illegible]

Uncle Wiggily Story - - By Howard Garis

When Bunty the orphan rabbit had had her room work to Uncle Wiggily's narrow strong bungalow after hopping out to have some fun the rabbit postman was not worried. He knew a big storm was coming. Then as I said you in my today's story he hopped to the front door.

"Who are you?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I am Priscilla, Bunty's talking doll," said the answer. "Bunty, my darlingums sweetie pie, mommeums, mommeums put me to bed because I had the sniffle worriums. He left a big storm for snuffles." Priscilla answered. "But she gave me some epicondo medicine and now my cold is better. Do you want me to come with you to look for my darlingums, mommeums?"

"Cut out the baby talk," exclaimed Buster. "You are worse than Bunty." Stop the baby talk as Bunty would say."

"Buster! Please don't speak that way to Bunty's doll," said Uncle Wiggily. "Be polite, please."

"I'm sorry," murmured the Rabbit boy.

"That's all right," kindly answered Priscilla. "Do you want me to come with you to look for my darlingums. I mean for Bunty?" asked Priscilla as she quickly switched off the baby talk.

"Think you, Priscilla, but I think you had better stay in the bungalow and take care of your cold," said Uncle Wiggily.

"You wouldn't have to carry me, if that's what you are thinking," went on the doll. "I can walk as well as I can talk, you know."

"Yes, I know," answered Uncle Wiggily. "But I still think you had better stay in the bungalow, Priscilla."

"All right," answered Priscilla. "But if I am sorry, when you find Bunty you might be alone, strong man, go to the [illegible] tell me where she has gone," said Priscilla.

"I will, I will, you girl," promised Mr. Longears to Priscilla. "Come on, Buster Bo." The rabbit gentleman and the rabbit boy set out on the adventure to go look for the orphan little urban rabbit. It was late in the dark day and it looked as if it might snow after you [illegible].

Where, I say, Where, and look for Bunty, asked Buster. As soon as they had set out what the orphan rabbit is doing. As you may remember, she was frozen up in the igloo snow-block house of the polar bear gentleman. Frozen up in the igloo, she was there, [illegible] looking for grizzly bear, who had been taking his long winter hibernating sleep.

Bunty had found a New Year horn in the igloo of the polar bear. By blowing on the horn Bunty had awakened Beckie.

"I will get myself out of this igloo," Beckie had promised." Then with my sharp, strong claws I will dig you out of your igloo, Bunty my dear."

So Bunty, too, over so [illegible] answering figures. No, as I know that I am frozen in the igloo, your Mr. Whitewash' [illegible] will be worried if I don't get home [illegible]

"I will dig you out," promised Beckie. Through the snow-block igloo of her igloo Bunty could see the little girl bear scratch and [illegible] at the frozen door of her igloo. Bunty listened several minutes to Beckie scratching and digging. Then the urban rabbit asked: "Have you dug your way out, Beckie?"

"No, no," Bunty was the [illegible] Beckie [illegible] digging.

"There will be another story tomorrow if the rubber boots will [illegible] the snowman as [illegible] to keep the mosquitoes from [illegible] him.

CANADIAN STAR CHALLENGES MISS CHADWICK TO RACE

Judge Shot Dead

WARREN, Pa. (UP) — A 26-year-old wife-deserter shot and killed a judge in his courtroom yesterday as the jurist prepared to send him to jail on non-support charges.

The gun-wielding defendant, Norman Moon, fled from the courtroom and tried to kill himself a few minutes later when state police caught up to him after an automobile chase a few miles from town. Moon shot himself through the neck, but Warren Hospital authorities said he probably will recover.

His victim, President Judge Allison D. Wade, 51, was shot through the heart and died on the floor in front of his bench. He had presided over the Warren and Forest County courts for 13 years.

The shooting occurred during a routine session in Judge Wade's courtroom on the second floor of Warren County's two-story, red brick courthouse.

Moon, a Connellsville, Pa., electrical worker, was called before the court for failure to comply with an order directing him to pay his wife, Janet, $30 a week. He refused to pay.

The dozen court attaches, attorneys and waiting witnesses in the 300-seat courtroom paid scant attention to the burly defendant as Judge Wade called him before the bench and asked, "Have you anything to say?"

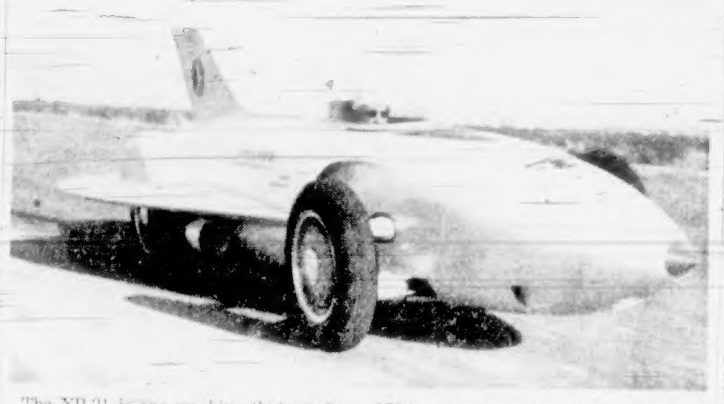
"No," Moon growled and jerked a 45-calibre pistol from his pocket. District Attorney Myer Kornreich saw the gun and dashed for the doorway in the rear of the room. Moon sent two shots crashing after the fleeing prosecutor.

Turning, Moon shot Wade in the chest twice as the judge struggled to his feet, holding a chair in front of him. "I'm not going to sentence you," Wade pleaded.

Mumbling, "I'm shot," the judge backed down from his dais and fell fatally wounded face down in front of the empty jury box. A physician waiting to testify in the next case rushed to his assistance, but Wade died within minutes.

Moon, terrorizing the witnesses with his pistol ran from the courtroom and down a stairway into the street.

They'll Never Get It Off the Ground



The XP-21 is one machine that won't break the sound barrier—in fact it won't even get off the ground. It's General Motors' experimental gas-turbine car, here being put through its paces by test driver Mauri Rose. The 370-horsepower turbine, which is not a jet engine, is the first used in a car in the United States. Called the Firebird, the car has a fibreglass body that is definitely not intended for driving in traffic.

Mayor Favors Fireboat At Cost of Two Halls

BY RAY BAINES

Mayor Claude Harrison suggested yesterday that the city might do well to close two more fire halls and use the saving for a fireboat. He made the suggestion while commenting on both the Tuesday VMD fire and the city firemen's recent request for a 10-per-cent wage boost.

The Burnside hall, he said, was more use to Saanich than to Victoria and the James Bay fire hall served mainly the legislative buildings, for which no taxes are paid.

"A fireboat would be of infinitely more value to the city than both these stations," he said.

Referring to the firemen's request for a wage boost, the mayor said it was "a great shame" that they ignored his plea to "hold the line."

"They know what my stand is on wages," he said. "As far as I'm concerned we must do nothing which might increase the tax rate."

It was the 17-per-cent increase awarded the firemen by a conciliation board in 1952 which resulted indirectly in the closing of the Yates Street fire hall and dismissal of 10 firemen.

The mayor felt that a crew owned a fireboat, it would save two outside departments would probably mean reduction in the fire-fighting staff by about 20 men.

He hinted also that if the city owned a fireboat, it would reduce the need for such a large fire department. Closing of the two more fire halls would serve this situation on the waterfront.

"We've had two lessons," he said in reference to the VMD and Salvage King fires. "To ignore them would be foolish."

The mayor said he may bring forward a proposal to council regarding a fireboat and fire department "in the heart of the city" if a situation within the next few weeks.

The department's union representatives met City Manager Cecil Wyatt with their wage requests Tuesday afternoon. Officials estimate the 10 per cent wage boost would cost $47,000 annually.

Contest Possible

Both Have Swum Channel In Almost Identical Times

BY LAWRIE JOSLIN

Canada's darling of the swimming world, Mrs. Winnie Roach Leuszler, wants to race United States' swimming ace Florence Chadwick across the Strait of Juan de Fuca next summer.

Mrs. Leuszler, who became the first Canadian woman to swim the English Channel in 1951, said she believes a race with Miss Chadwick across the strait would take on the aspects of an international competition and be beneficial both to Canada and the U.S.

The 28-year-old mother of three children told The Colonist last night from St. Thomas, Ont., that she has never been to Victoria, but her mother, the former Marguerite Abbott, was brought up on Vancouver Island.

If her planned strait swim becomes a reality, Mrs. Leuszler would come to Victoria about three weeks in advance of the date scheduled for the marathon classic.

It is possible, she said, that she might make an earlier trip to Victoria to make a detailed check of tide and temperature conditions in the strait.

This might not be necessary, however, since Miss Chadwick is coming here next week to look over the course and decide whether a swim is possible.

Miss Chadwick's views of conditions likely to be met in a strait crossing will probably be good enough for Mrs. Leuszler.

"If Florence Chadwick can do it, I can do it," Mrs. Leuszler declared stoutly.

The Canadian star, noted for her courage and endurance in marathon swim events, wants to take to the chilly waters of the strait at exactly the same moment as Miss Chadwick and make the contest a full-fledged race.

"I would like the chance to race her," she stated. "I rather feel I could beat her."

Mrs. Leuszler (who usually races under her maiden name, Winnie Roach) is already getting herself into fighting trim.

She started training last week for the famed course between Catalina Island and San Pedro, Cal., and plans to make this swim in September.

Mrs. Leuszler is rarely out of the water for very long. She teaches swimming at the YWCA in St. Thomas.

The plucky Canadian girl is not afraid of chilly water or strong tidal currents. She met both in the English Channel and conquered them with what was described at the time as "a beautiful orthodox style."

Prior to her Channel venture she had trained in Lake Ontario where the waters for a period at least were a frigid 33 degrees.

"I'm not afraid of the cold," said Mrs. Leuszler.

When informed that the average temperature of the strait is 51 or 52 degrees in July, she replied gamely:

"That doesn't sound too bad."

Mrs. Leuszler said she met strong tides in the Channel. She was leading the field of Channel contenders in 1951 and was only a few miles out from her destination on the English coast when a strong tide forced her back. She said she understood the tidal current that she eventually overcame was running somewhere in the neighborhood of 20 miles an hour.

She was seized by cramps only five miles out from the French coast and had to swim against this handicap the rest of the distance. Experts held that her cramps were caused by changing water temperatures which varied up and down under 63 degrees.

Though the Channel course was some 19 miles as the crow flies, Mrs. Leuszler said tidal currents lengthened her course to 38 miles, a distance she said she covered in 13 hours and 20 minutes.

When she completed the swim she had enough strength to walk in to shore to attendants on her escort boat.

"I thought I felt pretty good when it was all over," she recalled.

Canada's leading swimming star is a trim five feet three inches in height and weighs 135 pounds.

She and her husband, a member of the Royal Canadian Air Force, are keenly interested in sports. In his younger days, Mr. Leuszler was a runner.

The young couple have three daughters, aged 6, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Leuszler (pronounced Lize-ler) is coached in all her swimming endeavors by her father, Edward Roach.

The swimming duel is bound to be a tightly-fought classic if it comes off. Both Mrs. Leuszler and Miss Chadwick have crossed the Channel in almost identical times.

Both started swimming at early ages. Miss Chadwick swam her first competition at the age of six. Mrs. Leuszler began swimming when she was only four years old.

Both have smashed the Channel crossing record of Gertrude Ederle which stood for 24 years at 14 hours and 31 minutes.

Mrs. Leuszler challenged Miss Chadwick at one time to a race between Catalina Island and the California mainland, but her letter of challenge apparently went astray because she never received any reply.

In her 1951 Channel race, Mrs. Leuszler led a field of six woman contenders most of the way across the grueling 21-mile course between Cap Gris Nez, France, and the Dover beaches, and held the lead until she was caught in a strong tidal current. She was passed out by Brenda Fisher, a 23-year-old English girl, who set the current Women's world record for the Channel.

Ever since Miss Chadwick announced last week that she is considering an attempt to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca between Victoria and Port Angeles, local marine and sports enthusiasts have been debating her chances of success.

Opinion appears to be divided as to whether even a strong swimmer like Miss Chadwick could successfully conquer the intense cold of the water and the treacherous tide currents for the length of time it would take to negotiate the 18-mile stretch of water.

A swimmer, because of the tides, would have to swim farther than 18.5 miles to make the opposite shore.

Arctic Survival Grim for Pilot

POINT BARROW, Alaska (AP) — A pilot who made a forced landing on the Arctic ice pack told here how he survived for a week without sleep at 50-below-zero temperatures before he was sighted by air force fliers searching in winter's almost endless darkness.

Joel Thiebedeau vanished January 5 while flying from Fairbanks to Point Barrow where his wife was expected to give birth to twins. He was sighted Monday just as the organized search was about to be abandoned. This, Thiebedeau said, is what happened to him.

He was forced down north of the mouth of the Colville River on pack ice when the engine of his light plane quit because of the intense cold. He had only a small amount of fuel and no radio with which to summon aid.

He sat in the cabin of his flying place for five days, too daring to go to sleep because he was afraid he would freeze to death.

On the fifth day, Thiebedeau said, he ate his last food and set out.

He was 100 miles from Barrow but said he knew of cabins 30 miles away. The thermometer on the plane registered 30 below zero.

He cut holes in his parka so he could warm his gloveless hands against his body as he staggered over the pack ice. He said he was hungry but had no gun to shoot the Arctic fox he saw digging small out of cracks in the ice. He dared not take his hands from his body to dig out any of the fish he himself.

TRIED TO SIGNAL

Monday morning, the one exhausted pilot heard a search aircraft one-half mile to the south of his position. He desperately tried to signal the plane by setting fire to his maps and compass, which were the last burnable items he possessed. But the plane passed on without sighting him.

About four hours later, the drone of another search plane passed directly over him and the crew sighted him in the gloom.

The search pilot, unable to land on the jagged ice, summoned a smaller plane from Barrow.

Thiebedeau was put in hospital beside his wife who had given birth to the twins, a boy and a girl, while her husband was lost. He suffered minor frostbite to fingers, toes, cheeks and ears.

Backwoods Slayer Chills Community

COXBURG, Miss. (UP) — A backwoods Negro hunt-man who left off hunting quail and squirrel to hunt white men kept this tiny community in a grip of terror yesterday as he stalked his fourth victim.

Neither snow and freezing wind nor a 400-man posse armed with high-powered rifles, pistols, shotguns and even pitchforks were able to stop 28-year-old Eddie Noel and his deadly .22 calibre rifle.

Police in Baton Rouge, La., picked up a suspect they believed might be Noel, but authorities here said they thought it was the wrong man. The suspect gave his name as Dan Ingeram, and was described as a bigger man than Noel.

Noel's vow to "take four white men to Hell with me" was still unfilled, but three have already died before his rifle and another was seriously wounded but expected to live.

Noel, who kept his shooting eye sharpened by shooting quail on the wing and matches out of his wife's teeth, began his deadly hunt last Saturday night by calmly killing a grocer. He then mortally wounded a deputy, was trapped by three posse members but killed one and wounded the other two and slipped through a 400-man posse which reported it had him trapped.

Precision Tools Turned to Junk

Six hundred dollars worth of junk that took 35 years to collect sums up the plight of machinist Hugh Duffield. Wednesday morning he found that was all that was left of his treasured tools after the $100,000 fire Tuesday night at the Victoria Machinery Depot No. 2 Yard. He was one of 10 machinists who lost about $2,500 among them when their precision machine tools were ruined in the blaze.—(See story Page 15.)

Key Witness Found In Reuther Shooting

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Detroit authorities moved Wednesday night to establish whether Donald Ritchie definitely has the key to the solution of the 1948 Walter Reuther shooting or is the perpetrator of a spectacular hoax.

Also undecided was whether Ritchie will be questioned here or across the river in Detroit.

Earlier Wednesday Ritchie appeared in Essex County Court for an extradition hearing and balked at crossing into the United States.

His lawyer, Donald Morand, said that he had definite instructions that Ritchie intends to oppose extradition.

Detroit police say Ritchie is their key witness in the case against four men named in warrants in connection with the attempt on the life of Reuther, CIO president and United Auto Workers chief.

Ritchie surrendered at Preston, Ont., early Wednesday after a five-day flight from protective custody.

Ritchie was remanded in custody for eight days.

Ritchie is now named in an American assault-to-kill warrant in the attempted assassination of Reuther. Ritchie volunteered information that led a week ago to a warrant charging the four men with conspiracy and assault with intent to murder.

Friday, however, Ritchie escaped two policemen guards in a down-town Detroit hotel suite and skipped to Canada.

Ritchie kept his mouth shut after his surrender Wednesday, except to say he escaped by tricking his guards.

Plump Betty White, a former waitress, was picked up Tuesday night by Preston police who recognized the car she and Ritchie bought Monday in Chatham, Ont., with $1,400 of the money.

Sugar Daddy Squires Pretty Blonde Ghost

TIDDLEY, England (AP) — Edward Westwood says there is a blond ghost in his house who wears lipstick and walks around nights with a bald-headed sugar-daddy.

He appealed to the Birmingham Psychic Research Society to have investigators spend a night in the place and find out what is going on.

Westwood, who has moved out of the house pending developments, says the pretty blonde apparition has tipped one member of his family out of bed, grabbed another by the hair, and made the nights hideous by ringing a ghostly alarm clock.

He said she is sometimes alone and sometimes squired by the bald-headed chap, who apparently just goes along to watch.

Bernard Payne, an investigator for the society, said he will form a team to spend a night in the 100-year-old house.
